300 Planes Hunt Missing Navy Bomber

FOG HAMPERS SEARCH FOR 7 LOST AT SEA

24 Warships Plough Through Pacific For Craft Missing For Three Days.

ON 'ROUTINE FLIGHT'

Naval Cadet Lost In Tumble From Plane During Hunt Off San Pedro.

SAN PEDRO, Calif. — (AP) — Three hundred navy planes and 24 warships searched the seas between Santa Barbara and San Diego today for a giant service patrol bomber missing since Wednesday with seven men aboard.

Meantime, naval officials disclosed that Seth P. Hawkins, cadet attached to the cruiser Chicago, fell from the rear cockpit seat of a light plane yesterday and disappeared into the Pacific 100 miles offshore

The plane was engaged in a "routine flight."

Pilot Reports Tragedy.

The pilot, Aviation Cadet J H. Mack, jr., reported Hawkins' loss on his return to the fleet base here, but was unable to say whether a sudden downdraft had "bounced" him from the plane.

Confidence the missing patrol bomber would be found was expressed by Capt. Alva D. Bernhard, chief of staff, to rear Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the aircraft scouting force.

Fog hampered the search by battleships, cruisers, destroyers and two coast guard cutters last night and partly cloudy weather was forecast for today.

Activities Secret.

Secrecy shrouded activities of the missing plane, which was a member of the VP-7 squadron of Patrol Wing One but it was reported engaged in bombing practice off Santa Barbara Battleships had been in gunnery maneuvers in that area

Aboard were

Lieut. Truman E Carpenter, 28 pilot, of Passumpsic, Vt.

Aviation Cadet Philip O Browning, 28, co-pilot, Lees Summit, Mo

G A. Mills, 22 radioman, third class, Prescott, Mich

Joe Adair 21, radioman third class, Caruthersville, Mo

Navy officers suggested the craft may have been forced down and its radio disabled. They said it was capable of floating out a rough storm.

Davey Goes Before Ohio Parole Jury

Governor to Be Quizzed About Painter Pardon, Other Releases.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The perhaps unprecedented occasion of an Ohio governor testifying before a grand jury was eagerly awaited by the capital today.

Gov. Martin L. Davey, some of whose pardons and commutations of convicts' sentences have been under the scrutiny of the special grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in the state parole system, was the principal witness on the jury's program.

Veteran state house observers could not recall a governor appearing before a grand jury in this state. Gov. Judson Harmon was invited in for questioning by Atty. Gen. Edward C. Turner in connection with the legislative bribery investigation of 1911 but when he discovered thata stenographer was taking notes of his remarks, he left in anger.

Former Gov George White testified before the parole jury for an hour and a half last week

Governor Davey was invited to appear before the grand jury, and was not subpoenaed.

The jury, bound by law to secrecy, was unable to comply with his request to make public his testimony Atty Gen. Herbert S. Duffy said though, that the governor himself could disclose his testimony in a public statement.

The jury has questioned numerous physicians and nurses in the last week in connection with a pardon the governor granted to Kenyon V. Painter, former Cleveland banker. Painter was released from prison, on the ground he was seriously ill and in "imminent danger of death," after serving four months of a 1-to-10-year term for misapplication of funds.

The inquiry body also has investigated the governor's action in commuting to life imprisonment the death sentence of Alva (Pete) Conners of Akron, convicted of killing a man in a cafe brawl.

The attorney general said Arch W. Naylor, who has admitted helping numerous prisoners obtain paroles, would be cited for contempt for not obeying a subpoena to appear before the jury again

Mrs. William Elliott of Canton, whose husband was reported to have obtained a parole with Naylor's help, testified yesterday.

Although Richland county officials still had no formal word from Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy concerning a special grand jury here as part of the Ohio parole investigation, The News-Journal learned on reliable authority that a formal request for the summoning of a jury would be placed before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston next Monday, Jan. 10.

Under the law, the convening of a special grand jury must be advertised at least six days before the date it is to meet. Judge Huston said today.

If the request is made Monday, the advertisement could be placed in newspapers Tuesday. Judge Huston pointed out, and the panel could be seated on the following Monday, permitting the inquiry to start on schedule.

Huston Joins In Curfew Demand

Opposes Extension of Hours In Letter to Committee Head.

CITES DIVORCES

Judge Would Bar Youths Under 21 From All Liquor Spots.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston joined today in protesting the extension of the closing hour for Mansfield night clubs from 1 a. m. to 2:30 a. m., stating that "I am of the opinion that the closing time not only should not be extended, but boys and girls under 21 should not be permitted to visit these places."

Judge Huston's opinion, contained in a letter to Councilman Russell D. Porch, chairman of a city council committee named to study the advisability of the extension, was in line with the opposition expressed by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and Probate Judge C. J. Anderson in previous letters.

Cites 'Over-Indulgence.'

The three jurists had been asked by Porch to submit their views on the proposed closing hour extension. A city ordinance calls for closing of liquor establishments at 1 a. m. and at midnight on Saturdays, but it has never been enforced.

"I believe that a much larger number of those who visit places where intoxicating liquors are sold over indulge after 12 o'clock than prior to 12 o'clock," Judge Huston said.

Citing the effects of lax liquor enforcement on divorce cases handled in his court, Judge Huston said, "It might be interesting to know that prior to the repeal of the 18th amendment, the records show that not more than one out of six divorces was granted on account of the excessive use of intoxicating liquors. At the present time, however, in from four to five cases out of six, the evidence shows the excessive use of intoxicants."

Invites Skeptics to Court.

Offering to back his opinion with specific evidence, Judge Huston added that "if anyone takes issue with what I have said, I would be glad to have him come into court when divorce cases are being heard, and listen to the tragedies of life, and then say that the conducting of the liquor business in Mansfield is not a failure."

In answer to the arguments of proponents of the closing extension who contend that early closing in the city would drive

J. F. UHLICH, 70, FIRST TRAFFIC VICTIM OF '38

Auto Carried Down Tracks By Freight, Crushed Between Engine, Steel Bridge.

BODY PINNED IN WRECKAGE

Operated Bakery In City For 45 Years; Funeral to Be Held Sunday Afternoon.

Joseph F. Uhlich, 70, of 443 Marion avenue, proprietor of the J. F. Uhlich bakery and one of the oldest bakers in this section of the state, was instantly killed at 7 a. m. today when his automobile was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio freight train travelling east at the Bowman street crossing. It was the first fatal traffic accident of 1938 in Mansfield.

The automobile was carried 40 feet down the tracks by the slow moving freight and crushed between the engine and a steel bridge just east of Bowman street.

City firemen from No. 2 company under the direction of Capt. R. J. Shively with the aid of a wrecking crew summoned from a downtown garage worked for an hour and a half in extricating the body that was pinned in the mangled iron and steel. Gasoline escaping from the crushed tank of the auto created a fire hazard and acetylene torches brought to the scene could not be used.

The wrecking crew experienced difficulty in removing parts of the car which were entangled with the driver wheels of the locomotive, before they were able to remove Mr. Uhlich's body.

The aged baker, who has operated a wholesale bakery in Mansfield for the past 45 years had left his home at 6:50 a. m. and was on his way to work at his establishment at 429 Springmill street, when the accident occurred.

The crossing was blocked for more than two hours. Police detoured traffic over West Sixth and Springmill streets.

When emergency train crews had cleared away the wreckage,

Raps U. S. Attempts To 'Scare Business'

Sears-Roebuck President Says Ickes, Jackson Addresses Helped to Lessen Confidence; Hits Gold Program, Halt of Spending.

WASHINGTON—President Robert E. Wood of Sears-Roebuck company today charged before the senate unemployment investigating committee that recent addresses of Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson were "calculated to scare business."

Wood, in response to questions by Committee Chairman James F. Byrnes, D., S. C., said, however, that the president's message to congress was "reassuring."

In presenting his views Wood said that while he might be described as an "economic royalist" he had supported "every reform measure the administration has put in."

Lacks Confidence.

"Business lacks confidence and is scared," he said. "You just take what has happened in the last 10 days. Those speeches (by Ickes and Jackson) were calculated to scare business."

Major factors contributing to business recession, according to Wood, were:

1. The government's gold sterilization program, which he termed "deflationary."

2. Cessation of government spending at a time when business was unable to "prime the pump" with private capital.

3. Acquisition of large inventories in the spring during threat of labor strikes and inability to move goods.

Wood followed William S Knudsen, president of General Motors, in testifying before the committee.

Knudsen yesterday predicted an upturn in business in the spring, but flatly opposed a suggestion by Senator James Byrnes, chairman of the committee, that corporations should use their surpluses to keep men at work instead of laying them off.

Both Byrnes and Senator

7 MILLIONS OFF

All Counties Fall Behind In Sales Tax Receipts.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley said today that collections from prepaid sales tax receipts for the year ending Dec. 25, 1937, were about $7,000,000 less than collections for the same period the previous year.

Despite an increase of nearly $40,000 in sales tax receipts during Christmas week, totalling $1,082,888 in 1937, the collections for the year showed a decrease previously predicted by Tax Commissioner Walter Mitchell.

Not a single county showed an increase in 1937 collections over 1936 Knisley's report showed.

Mitchell, predicted the decrease because of food exemptions, nonresident exemptions and the lack of sufficient money to employ inspectors.

Ford Sees America on Way To 'Most Prosperous' Era

Holds Keystone to New Prosperity to Be Use of Farm By-Products for Manufacturing Industrial Goods.

DEARBORN—(U.P.)—Henry Ford believes America is entering the most prosperous era of its history.

The prosperity he sees will be one in which industry and agriculture are linked by an inseparable bond to banish depression.

This new day, the nation's No. 1 individualist and pioneer automobile manufacturer told the United Press today, "is at hand."

Its keystone will be the use of agriculture by-products in the manufacture of industrial goods.

Its spark-plug, he believes, will be a new tractor which soon will go into mass production at the Ford River Rouge plant. The tractor will be so cheap that every tiller of the soil from the dirt farms of New Jersey to the broad Kansas plains may buy it.

Autos From Wheat.

The time is virtually here, Ford told the United Press, when almost an entire automobile—body fenders, doors and paneling—may be constructed out of wheat chaff, soy beans, corn husks, or other farm by-products.

"This new alliance of agriculture and industry," Ford predicted, "will be the salvation of both. It will produce the greatest period of prosperity the country ever has known.

"And I'll put this thing over if it's the life of me," he added, smiling.

Ford, vibrant with visions of

Judge Delays Hearing On Suit To Invalidate Auto Title Law

Refusing to grant a temporary injunction in common pleas court against the operation of the new state automobile certificate of title law in Richland county, Judge C. H. Huston today continued hearing on the case to Feb. 1.

The continuance was granted at the request of Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Attorney Donald Greek of Columbus, attorney for the Ohio State Automobile association, who represented the defendant county officials at the hearing.

In granting the continuance, Judge Huston pointed out that there would be no registration system to replace the present set-up in the county should a temporary injunction be allowed.

He asked counsel for both sides to prepare briefs of their arguments to submit to him and called on Marriott to investigate further the status of he law, which he described as "too broad to permit hasty action."

The petition for an injunction was filed by Atty. H. M. Rust of Mansfield as a taxpayer, and charged that the state law is unconstitutional in that it encroaches upon the federal law regarding the importation of automobiles into Ohio and places illegal demands on the county clerk of courts. John C. O'Donnell of the law firm of Nist and O'Donnell represented Rust.

Mansfielder Who Served as White House Governess Dies

Mrs Jennie Nolan, 132 Lexington avenue, one time governess to the children of the late President Grover Cleveland and of Emily Post, nationally known authority on etiquette, died at her home yesterday following a long illness.

A native of Braunschweig, Germany, Mrs. Nolan came to Mansfield 30 years ago with her husband, John J Nolan, and her family, and had resided here since then.

Although she had lived in this city for more than a quarter of a century, few persons, outside her family and intimate friends knew the interesting phases of her life in her earlier years.

As Jennie Schultz, a young German girl of fine background and good education, she had served as governess to children of American celebrities, and numbered among her friends many of the great personages of the 1890's.

Ashbrook Offers 'Compromise' On War Referendum

Congressman William A. Ashbrook, representative of Richland county and the 17th Ohio district in Washington, has introduced in the house a new resolution concerning American entry into war, Associated Press dispatches from Washington said today.

Ashbrook's proposal would permit congress to declare war when the United States or any nation affected by the Monroe doctrine was invaded. In cases when there was no invasion, a national referendum would be required before the United States could go to war.

Ashbrook's proposal is a variation of the plan of Representative Louis Ludlow, of Illinois, who first introduced the referendum idea.

Ludlow's proposal was held in committee through most of the recent special session of congress, but was finally brought out on the floor when 218 members of the house signed a petition to release the resolution from committee Ashbrook helped to obtain the necessary number of signers.

FRED, ELLY SHRINKING VIOLETS

Too Modest to Rank Themselves In All-Time Tennis Rankings.

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—Before I die and become just another bust in the hall of fame I hope to meet a great athlete who, when asked to name an all-time team of his sport, unhesitatingly puts his own name on the list.

Elly Vines

I acquired this ambition today when I read the replies of Fred Perry and Ellsworth Vines to a request that they rank the first ten tennis players of all time. Vines, leaning so far backward in his modesty that he resembled a croquet wicket, selected Tilden, Perry, Bill Johnston, La Coste, Budge, Borotra, Cochet, Nusselem, Kozeluh, Crawford. And Perry, with more than enough self-effacement to equip all the rural milkmaids in the world, nominated Tilden, Vines, Johnston, La Coste, Cochet, Budge, Borotra, Nusselein, Crawford and Patterson.

Now anyone with enough knowledge of tennis to differentiate between a volley and a haircut knows that Vines knows he is one of the ten greatest players ever produced. And the same goes for Perry. Yet each omits himself, which causes me to believe they are either daffy, insincere, or just a pair of shrinking violets seeking a mossy stone.

I BELIEVE the answer must be insincerity, else how could Vines place Perry second on his list, when Perry is a man he beats half the time? And what else could prompt Perry to name Vines second, when Ellsworth is a man he holds his own with?

The one consolation in such behavior by the Messrs. Vines and Perry is that they are holding fast to one of the sports silliest traditions. Ask Babe Ruth to name an all-time baseball team a nine that does not have the name and the fat one will reel you off of Ruth in right field. I would hate to hang by my thumbs until Ruth, in his heart, was convinced he didn't belong on any and all all-star baseball teams.

Certainly there was nothing modest about Ruth when he was haggling with Col. Jacob Rupert over the matter of salary. I don't ever remember his denying his true worth in those days. He shouted it from the house tops, and was always looking for a newer and higher house top.

But they all do it. Bobby Jones must have selected three gross of all-time golf teams in his day, and not his name never was on one of them. Which of course is just as absurd as it would have been for Napoleon to leave himself off an all-star military team or Mickey Mouse to accidentally omit his name in an all-colored list.

I FEEL I can criticize the sport heroes for false modesty because I never was guilty of the charge myself. When I was a big and scrawny champion I was never one to hide my light under a bushel. Every all-star team I ever made was headed by the name McLemore. I even refused to play the game of Knee Ball when I grew tired of mine and as everyone knows Abou always liked to get his name first.

THE PASS MASTER: Slingin' Sam's life story.

Slingin' Sam Wins Pro Football Title

(Last In a Series.)

(Copyright, 1938, Associated Press)

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT

WHEN Sammy Baugh came to the Washington Redskins as a professional football freshman, Coach Ray Flaherty offered advice.

"You can't throw that ball around in this league the way they do in college," he cautioned. "It's too risky. You mustn't let go the ball until you're sure of hitting the receiver right in the eye."

"Which eye, coach?" asked Sammy.

And it soon appeared that Sammy could hit either eye, for, in his first game against the Giants, he completed 11 of 16 passes and hit his receivers with the other five.

It didn't take Baugh long to show the pros he could take it. Les Corzine, Giant fullback, threw an exceptionally hard block into Sammy and they went down. Sammy got up, smiled and said: "Keep that up, boy, and you'll get your letter." The Giants let him alone after that.

It was weeks earlier that professional football had got its first contact with Baugh. In the late summer of 1937 he passed a college all-star team to a Chicago triumph over the Green Bay Packers. Then he hurried to Dallas and again starred as another band of collegians whipped the Chicago Bears.

After that came the rush to sign Baugh as a salaried performer.

Baugh wanted to stay with his old coach, Leo Mayer, and even signed as T.C.U.'s freshman mentor. But the professional offers were too attractive and Baugh finally went to Washington.

Already a fine kicker and passer, he became a crack runner.

His pass receivers praised him.

"When you're out there and break into the open—look out! the ball'll be on top of you in a second. Boom! like that," said Wayne Millner, an end.

"He could hit his receiver while lying on his stomach," said Cliff Battles.

"He doesn't have to cock his arm and get set. He throws sidearm and with a snap of the wrist. Sammy can knock a cigar out of your mouth at 20 yards."

It seemed likely early in the season that Baugh might break the league passing record (and he did with 81 completions) but it wasn't until he made monkeys of the Giants in the eastern title game that blase Manhattan experts ranked him among the greatest passers of all time.

And after he pitched the Redskins to the National league championship against the Bears sports writers were certain they'd never seen a passer like Baugh.

Benny Friedman, ranked as tops in passing, conceded Baugh was better than he'd been. Dutch Clark, another pro ace, labeled him the finest tosser he'd ever seen.

With a flip of his wrist, as lacking in windup as a pitcher holding runners on base, Baugh befuddled the Bears. He showed them a real change of pace. He'd throw short flat passes, intermediate bullets and long lobs. And he showed he didn't need any special receiver by tossing to seven pass-snatchers. His three-touchdown passing performance in the third quarter was hailed as the greatest one-man show in grid history.

To praises Baugh smilingly replies: "What the heck, anyone can pitch. It takes real ball players to do the catching."

Baugh still retains the shy grin and schoolboy modesty that borders on backwardness.

Former Chief Admitted to Hall of Fame

Scores Second Perfect Tilt Shot In League Match In City.

ADD the name of Ralph Schad to the exclusive list of 300 bowlers.

One of the veteran bowlers of the city, Schad of the Heilman Grocers won a place in the sports' hall of fame last night while performing in the Commercial B league at the Meder Recreation alleys.

Schad, a former city chief of police and county sheriff, rolled his perfect score in the middle game of the Grocers' series with the Willis Billiards.

First In League.

It was not only the first 300 score shot in the Commercial circuit, but the second ever scored in a Mansfield league. The first perfect game rolled in league competition was shot by Sonny Meder of the Miller Oldsmobiles in the City Class A league six weeks ago.

This was the first perfect score ever rolled by Shad, who has been a bowler for 35 years. He has come within one or two strikes of 300 games on several occasions, however.

Schad, manager of the Independent Grocers Institute, Inc., started with an ordinary 168 score in his first game. No attention was paid to his middle game until he had hung up six strikes in a row.

Other matches were halted when he registered his 10th strike and the bowlers crowded around the alleys on which he was bowling. Schad swept the pins off the boards with his 11th ball, but not a whimper came from the crowd.

Then came the big test—the 12th ball. The crowd of bowlers waited with bated breath. Schad took his stance, stepped down the runway, and let go.

His mineralite "took" two feet in front of the formation, cut sharply to the left into the "1-3" pocket and the pins flew in every direction.

Finishes with 153.

The thunderous ovation which followed must have affected Schad for the best he could do in his last game was a 153, but it was enough to give him a 621 total.

Virtually all of Schad's hits were in the right "pocket," but he was given in scare on his 10th ball when the 10 pin wobbled several seconds before falling. The game was shot on the No. 11 and 12 alleys.

Aided by Yingling's 630, the Heilman team came through with a 2791 total, shooting a 1020 in

Steele Choice Over Apostoli

Title Not at Stake In Tonight's Middleweight Battle.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Fred Apostoli, San Francisco battling bellhop, puts his title hopes on the line tonight when he clashes with Middleweight Champion Freddy Steele, of Tacoma, in a 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

It is not a title tiff but if Apostoli does not win or fails to make an impressive showing, he may never get Steele to give him a shot at the title. Steele is a 13-5 favorite.

Steele will weigh about 158, and Apostoli will scale a few ounces over 160.

Murphy to Unfurl New Court Lineup

Shelly or Dugger Expected to Fill Vacancy In Tonight's Game With Parma.

COACH Russ Murphy will unfurl a new starting lineup tonight when the Tygers engage Parma of Cleveland in their first 1938 appearance of the season in the Mansfield high school bailiwick.

Forced to make a change because of the ineligibility of Freddy Lewis, a mid-season graduate, Murphy will use either Dave Shelly or Jack Dugger at the vacant forward post tonight.

Other Parts Intact.

The rest of the lineup consisting of John Halabrin and Jack Lyons at the guards, Elmer Dials at center and Tom Scott at the other forward, will remain intact.

Dugger.

While Murphy has delayed his selection of the forward to be paired with Scott until tonight, it is believed that Dugger will get the call.

Dugger, who made a fair showing as a center in the opening game, has shown constant improvement, and Murphy is expected to give him the call because of his fine ball handling in the brief appearance he has made since the start of the campaign.

Boasts of Fine Record.

The strength of the Tygers' foe tonight is not known, but Parma boasts of a fine record compiled against Cleveland foes, and is expected to provide the Mansfielders with an interesting setto.

The game will be preceded by a preliminary contest involving the Mansfield reserves at 7:15 p. m.

CAPACITY CROWD LOOMS FOR GAME IN RAMS' GYM

Madison Rams Hosts to Ontario Basketeers Tonight; Butler Invades Lexington.

SEATING room in Madison high's gym is expected to be at a premium tonight when the Rams tackle the undefeated Ontario quintet in one of two games on the Richland county basketball league sked this week.

Tonight's other attraction tosses Butler's fast-stepping combine against the Minutemen at Lexington. Union, Lucas and Bellville are idle, but Union will entertain Ontario Saturday night.

Outcome Important.

The outcome of the Madison-Ontario affair will have considerable bearing on the championship hopes of both clubs. A setback for the Rams will practically eliminate the team's chances, while a victory for Ontario will keep it at the top of the standings which it now shares with Butler.

The two outfits tangled a couple of weeks ago and Ontario had a hard time ekeing out a two-point decision, and although it'll enter the games tonight as the favorite, Madison will "shoot the works."

Coach Al Fendrick's big job this week has been to set up a defense to halt Matt Hager, Ontario sharpshooting ace. Hager scored 10 points in the last battle.

Seeks Fifth Straight.

Butler, sporting an impressive record of four straight league victories, has a big job on its hands tonight. Lexington, led by Richard Rule, all-county center last year, got off to a slow start, but should be in top form for the battle.

SNAP NOTES WIN STREAK

Blue Goose Cagers Deal Out First Defeat of Season to Benny's Quintet.

Benny's Hi Notes are still clinging to the top rung of the Friendly House Senior league ladder.

Last night the Hi Notes, sporting an impressive record of six straight victories, ran into a determined Blue Goose quintet at the Friendly House and emerged on the short end of a 26 to 25 score.

The Blue Goose combine unleashed a desperate last-period rally to edge the erstwhile unbeaten leaders. The defeat left the pace setters still holding a one-game lead in the race.

Going into the last chapter trailing by a 21 to 16 count, the Blue Goose machine turned on the steam to outscore their opponents, 10 to 4, to win.

The winners, paced by Harfman's eight points, grabbed a 6-4 lead in the opening stanza, and were ahead by a 10 to 8 count at the half. Coming back strong after the intermission, the Hi Notes started hitting and went into the fatal quarter leading 21 to 16. Bohland topped the losers with seven points.

In the other games the Rex Billiards defeated the Zeigler Independents, 39 to 30, and the Dinger Independents drubbed the Moritz All Stars, 31 to 20.

Fail to Improve

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

A BALL player who cannot show sufficient improvement in two years of Class D baseball to gain advancement to a league of higher classification should be convinced that he has missed his calling.

There are exceptions to the rule, of course. There are instances of players who needed more than a couple of years of kindergarten work in Class D baseball to prepare them for promotion.

But the exceptions are too few to offer as incentives for players who are unable to reach their stride in two years of play in one of baseball's lowest classifications.

In checking over the Ohio State league averages, it is found that few of the players who served their freshman year in 1936 showed any great improvement in their averages last season.

This does not necessarily mean that they are not prospects, but a player should be able to show some improvement over a two-year period.

Injuries and illness probably handicapped several of the players, notably Del Goldsmith of Tiffin, but the majority of the players whose averages took abrupt declines were not bothered by physical ailments.

THE QUESTION now is whether the players who will not advance this year are worth retention.

The only two-year players outside of Chappie Geygan whose averages showed improvement last summer were, Verban of Tiffin who hoisted his batting mark from .282 to .333; Platek of Marion, .300 to .312; Harris of Marion .249 to .277, and Hribernik to Fremont .270 to .271.

Players who were unable to continue at their 1936 pace included Quackenbush, who fell from .325 to .227; Speas to Tiffin, from .318 to .286; Swed of Marion, from .313 to .262; Westphall of Tiffin, from .307 to .273; Goldsmith of Tiffin from .307 to .272; Stiewe of Marion, from .303 to .283, and Lupo of Tiffin, from .281 to .256.

It is admitted that figures do not always tell the tale. If they do not in this case, then the reduction in these batting averages must be attributed to an improvement in the strength of the circuit.

THE PITCHING figures also show a decline. Only Gordon Mann and John Brich of Marion and Chuck Cronin of Tiffin boasted of better records last year than 1936.

A number of the other veteran pitchers who held down regular assignments in 1936 were unable to even retain their berths last summer.

While these figures may be comparisons may be worthless, they are interesting, nevertheless.

Attract Big Galleries In Opening Day of Los Angeles Open Tourney.

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOS ANGELES —(U.P.)— The 1938 tournament golf season will be inaugurated here today when a widely assorted field of 275 begins firing in the 72-hole, $5,000 Los Angeles open.

The entry list for the fixture reads like a few pages torn at random from the census. All sorts of folk are down for the four days of play. Besides the established professionals whose names you always see, there are movie stars, wrestlers, restauranteurs, a woman, and even a masked marvel. The gentler sex will be represented by Babe Didriksen. "Sammy Snead and Jimmy Thomson will be the only players in the field who will outhit me," Babe said. "And they won't do it by more than a few yards."

Miss Didriksen will have as her threesome partners George Zaharias, the wrestler, and Pardee Erdman, an erudite religion professor from occidental college.

Harold Lloyd is honorary marshal and will start play not long after breakfast time.

The two biggest galleries of the day are expected to follow the threesomes which include Harry Cooper and Sammy Snead, the two co-favorites.

Allen, Feller Get Salary Increases

Iowa Farm Boy Expected to Receive Either $15,000 of $17,500.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The powerful right arm of Bob Feller, the "story book kid" from an Iowa farm who became the American league strikeout act, has earned him a salary increase as pitcher for the Cleveland Indians.

Alva Bradley, club president, announced last night that Master Bob would draw more pay for the 1938 season—but the figure was not disclosed.

Indicates 'Flat $15,000.'

While Feller's 1937 diamond income was not made public, an authoritative source indicated it was "a flat $15,000." A Cleveland baseball writer said "the probability is that he will draw in the neighborhood of $17,500 for his services in 1938."

Such a salary would rank him as one of the 10 highest paid major league players and tops among the Indians.

Feller received a handsome income last season from lucrative commercial tie-ups. One post-season barnstorming trip brought him $3,000. His proceeds from indorsements of widely advertised products totalled thousands of dollars.

On the other hand, Feller made the Indians' till ring a merry tune from spring training days to the season's curtain. His appearances in a spring series with the New York Giants drew thousands of spectators—and this was climaxed by a pre-season exhibition dual between Feller and Carl Hubbell before a near-capacity crowd in New York.

Received $16,000 in '37.

Bradley indicated a contract mailed to another Indian mound star, Johnny Allen, who won 15 and lost only a single game last year, carried a salary increase. Allen received about $16,000 in 1937.

Asked how the fiery Carolinian would be treated, Bradley replied: "How can we treat him? He had a mighty fine year."

The club prexy added that the tribe's payroll would be somewhat higher—"many increases and a few cuts, but the raises will outweight the decreases."

VIE AT Y SATURDAY

Class C Church league cage games Saturday at the Y.M.C.A. follow: Boy Rangers vs. First M. E., 2:00; First Lutheran vs. United Presbyterian, 2:45; South Main vs. St. Paul's, 3:15. First Presbyterian is idle.

North Park Attracts Big Skate Crowds

Skating remains Mansfield's chief outdoor winter sport, judging from the size of the crowds which are frequenting North Lake park.

More skaters than in any recent year are taking advantage of the natural rink at the west Fourth street park, and the ice has been holding up well under the monotonous grind of flashing blades. The frozen lake is large enough to accommodate 600 to 700 skaters at a time.

Park officials have found it difficult to keep a smooth surface on the ice. The lack of equipment has made it impossible to correct the bumps which develop after each partial thaw.

The only attempt to smoothe the surface by flooding the ice this winter proved unsuccessful due to the lack of equipment.

CARPENTER TIPS FIFTH

Hands Grade School League Leader First Loss of Campaign.

The Carpenter quintet finally turned the trick yesterday—that of defeating the pace-setting West Fifth Street cagers in a Grade school basketball league tilt at Senior high.

The youngsters from Carpenter downed the erstwhile unbeaten West Fifth outfit, 8 to 4. Foster led the way with six points.

Bowman blanked Brinkerhoff, 4 to 0, with Baker accounting for all points. Woodland trampled Western, 18 to 9. Prospect edged Newman, 11 to 10, and Hedges smothered Bushnell, 22 to 8, in the other games

ANNOUNCE RELEASES

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Optional releases of Catcher Chris Hartje and Second Baseman Herman Schulte to the Newark farm club were announced today by the New York Yankees. Optional releases of pitchers Marvin Bruer and Al Pilchota and Catcher William Baker to the Kansas City club also were announced. All are subject to recall at the end of the 1938 season. Outfielder Earl Bolyard was released outright to Baltimore, and Infielder James Hitchcock to Chattanooga.

CONSIDERS RULE CHANGES

High School Coaches of 20 States Attend Chicago Meeting.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—The National Interscholastic football rules committee, which governs play in 20 states, meet here today and Saturday to consider possible code changes for 1938.

Henry V. Porter of Chicago, secretary of the rules committee, said his questionnaire to member states indicated there would be no major changes. "Many believe football would be a better game if the goal posts were put back on the goal line," Porter said. "The injury hazard prevents this action, but there are several proposals designed to give all the advantages of having them on the goal line without the danger features."

OPENS NEW RIVALRY

WOOSTER—Wooster begins a new rivalry here Jan. 12 when the Scots play hosts to Hobart College. It is the first trip to the middle west for the Hobart cagers.

MEMOIRS OF A SCRIBE'S RAMBLINGS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Memoirs of a sports writer's ramblings through the midwest and south:

The best laugh of the football season occurred between halves of the Sugar Bowl game New Year's day. Over the amplifiers came this message: "Mr. Merrick, will you please stand up? Your friend, Mr. Jones, is lost." Immediately 41,000 persons stood up, multiplying Mr. Jones' problem more than somewhat. . . .

Jock Sutherland of Pittsburgh not only turned out one of the year's best football teams but proved himself the best bowl picker in the land. Of 17 coaches polled by the United Press at the New Orleans coaching convention, Dr. Sutherland was the only one to hit the jackpot with California, Santa Clara, Auburn, Rice and West Virginia. The consensus of southern football coaches was that Auburn and not Alabama or Louisiana State had the best season. And the tip is out, watch football team in the south last Auburn and a sophomore halfback named McGowan this fall. . . .

Harry Mehre walked up to a group in the lobby of the St. Charles hotel in which there were a couple of strangers. When no one introduced him he performed the rites himself saying: "I'm Mehre, formerly of Georgia, now running unattached." . . .

Pitt's deep reverse which shook Halfback Stebbins loose for the second touchdown against Notre Dame is one of the most talked about plays of the past season. This is the play which fooled even All-American End Chuck Sweeney. . . . Harry Kipke's graceful retirement as president of the Football Coaches association in the light of the situation at Michigan further established him as one of the game's outstanding sportsmen.

Recalling Elmer Layden's mournful speech to an alumni gathering the night before the Notre Dame-Minnesota game, which until another one comes along is tops in melancholia. Off Elmer's speech Minnesota should have won 140-0, but it turned out he was only joking and the Irish won, 7-6. . . .

P. K. Wrigley explaining the Cubs' new setup under which Charlie Grimm will be the field marshal and Gabby Hartnett and Tony Hartnett will be first lieutenants. Hartnett will supply the pep and hustle and Lazzeri the discipline and driving force under Wrigley's plan. . . . Warren C. Giles and Gabriel Paul of the last-place Cincinnati Reds pouring champagne for the boys on Christmas eve. . . . Wondering what they'll do if the Reds ever win the pennant. . . . Learning from baseball fans in widely scattered sections that one of the big questions bothering them is: "What kind of a guy is Bill Terry?"

REPORTS BRISK RECOVERY IN RETAIL SALES

Dun & Bradstreet Survey Bolsters Market Sentiment as Leaders Slip.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks lost rallying vigor in today's early market proceedings and Thursday's buoyant leaders slipped fractions to more than a point.

Steels and motors gave ground easily. Rails were more resistant and most were only slightly under water.

Brokers were inclined to attribute the set-back principally to profit selling following yesterday's sharp recovery. Most corporation bonds were mixed, as were the major commodities.

Bolstering market sentiment before the start of trading was the week-end survey of Dun & Bradstreet reporting a brisk pick-up in public spending during the past several days.

Retail sales for the week were estimated at 2 to 8 per cent above the preceding period and 3 to 10 per cent over the corresponding 1937 week. Wholesale buying, it was said, topped the same week last year by 4 to 12 per cent.

The review added that "January thus far has been an encouraging surprise" to merchants and that, instead of the anticipated downtrend after he holiday week, clearance events and mark-downs spurred demand in virtually all centers.

Play Leads In 'Tovarich'

Sparkling Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer were the lucky winners of the two leading roles in the screen version of "Tovarich," one of the big stage hits of the current season. They have the roles of Russian exiles in Paris, who forget their noble birth and wait table. It is a rollicking and romantic comedy which would seem to suit both players admirably. It is booked for the Ohio theater for the first half of the week with a midnight matinee Saturday.

THEATER

DOTS AND DASHES—The papers in Louisville, Ky., thought Marjorie Weaver, new screen starlet, a good enough story to fly photographers to Hollywood to take special pictures. . . . She has a feature role in "Second Honeymoon," and is a native of Louisville. . . . Sample of how fast Hollywood gossip travels. . . . Lucille Ball wears a wedding ring in the picture, "Joy of Loving." . . . She couldn't get it off after a scene recently, so she wore it home and to dinner at a cafe. . . . By the next night, she had received four telegrams of congratulations on her marriage to Al Hall. . . . Jeanette MacDonald may do a musical with a Scotch background. . . . She is busy reading a script based on the story of "Annie Laurie."

Howard as a Banker.

Leslie Howard portrays the role of Atterbury Dodd, a shy, bespectacled banker in "Stand-In," the screen version of Clarence Budington Kelland's story, at the Ohio theater. The film follows the adventures of Howard who goes to Hollywood to take over the $10,000,000 Colossal Studios and put it on a paying basis by the science of mathematics. Joan Blondell, who is co-starred with Howard, plays the role of the stand-in. The two become friends and Miss Blondell helps him foil the conspirators who are trying to get the studios. Others in the cast include Humphrey Bogart, Alan Mowbray, Marla Shelton and C. Henry Gordon.

Comedians at Madison.

"High Flyers," opening at the Madison theater today brings to the screen the well-known comedy team of Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey. Supporting the stars are Lupe Velez, Marjorie Lord, Jack Carson and Paul Harvey. In the film, Wheeler and Woolsey are cast as the owners of an airplane concession in a carnival. When they suddenly come into possession of a police airplane and transport stolen jewels in it, thinking the cargo is newspaper photographs, the fun begins. How they turn the trick on the real thief and win the love of their girls provides amusing entertainment.

"Outlaws of the Prairie."

Charles Starrett and Donald Grayson are co-featured in the western, "Outlaws of the Prairie," opening one the double feature program at the Majestic theater today. The picture depicts the activities of Starrett and Grayson, the singing cowboy, as they attempt to capture a gang of rustlers ruining the ranchowners. The second film is a re-issue of Freddie Bartholomew's starring vehicle, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," Dolores Costello Barrymore and Guy Kibbee head the feature cast.

Buck Jones at Ritz.

The western film hero, Buck Jones, comes to the Ritz screen today in his latest production, "Black Aces." Jones plays the role of a rancher, trying to raise cattle, despite the activities of a large gang known as the "Black Aces." And then he sets out alone to catch the outlaws after they steal a large herd of his prize cattle. "Exiled in Shanghai," with Wallace Ford and June Travis heading the cast completes the entertainment through Saturday. Ford plays a photographer who gets mixed up in a fly-by-night organization which relieves his friends of the money they sink into the project.

HUSTON SCORES LIQUOR HOURS

Would Bar All Under 21 From Wet Spots; Cites Divorce Case Evidence.

night clubs to the rural districts, Judge Huston stated that "I am confident if the country districts are menaced by over-indulgence after midnight, they have sufficient courage and pride to vote it out. That is what will happen," he added, "if the clubs are driven out of Mansfield and unless the liquor department of the State of Ohio and the permit holders in the city clean their own house and conform with the promise they made at the time of the repeal of the 18 amendment."

"Some of the establishments are conducted with some degree of regard for decency and morals," the letter said, "but the aftermath that comes into court from the conduct of many of the places is such that I am convinced they are not fit places for adults or any other self-respecting individual to visit."

Background.

The background of the argument over closing hours, briefly, is this: Early in December, Police Chief Meade K. Bates announced he would enforce the city ordinance calling for 1 p. m. closing during the week and midnight on Saturday. He granted a "stay" a few days later, because night club operators claimed they were committed to contracts with orchestras and entertainers to work until 2:30, the hour set for closing under state regulations. Then liquor permit holders petitioned council to change the ordinance to conform to state regulations. Churches petitioned for enforcement of the ordinance. The question was referred to a council committee headed by Porch. Wednesday, Bates announced he would defer enforcement of the city ordinance until the committee reported its recommendations a yard engine towed the disabled locomotive and train to the yards. Meanwhile passenger service, which operates over the same tracks on the Pittsburgh-Chicago line was delayed for over an hour.

BAKER KILLED AT CROSSING

The train, pulling 52 loaded freight cars, westbound for Chicago, had stopped 100 yards west of the crossing to wait for a signal to pass through the Mansfield yards, trainmen said. Engineer P. O. Dutcher of Newark, said the train started across Bowman street when the car pulled onto the crossing.

Other members of the crew were H. H. Thompson, fireman, W. Andrews, conductor, and T. M. Parker, brakeman, all of Newark.

Mr. Uhlich, who operated one of the oldest bakeries in this part of the state, started in business in 1893 with Frank Henry. They established the American Bakery company at Sixth and Mulberry streets. Two years later Mr. Uhlich purchased his partner's interest in the business, which has been since known as the J. F. Uhlich Bakery. In recent years his son Wade has been associated with him in the business.

He was a member of the Ohio Bakers association, American Bakers association, and the American Institute of Baking.

Mr. Uhlich was a lifelong resident of Mansfield and was born on a farm, north of the city, which is now Roseland.

He was a charter member of St. Mark's Lutheran church, the Independent Order of Foresters, and Modern Woodmen of America. His wife, the late Emma B. Enlow Uhlich, died in 1928.

Since that time he had been living at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Russell.

He is survived by one son, Wade; two daughters, Mrs. George Hahn, and Mrs. George Russell; three brothers, Rolly of Jackson township, and Mont and George Uhlich of Mansfield, and nine grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at St. Mark's Lutheran church at 2 p. m. Sunday with Rev. J. Louis Wolf officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

FORD PREDICTS PROSPERITY ERA

Use of Farm By-Products For Industrial Materials Forms Keystone, He Says.

the future based on his dream of farm and factory co-operation, led the way through immaculate laboratories where engineers were trying, discarding, and trying again.

On the glazed floor Ford drove the new tractor, never before seen by an outsider. The 74-year-old industrialist was as pleased as a small boy with a fire engine.

To him it was far more than a tractor. It was a magic sesame to a new life. Through this mechanical simplicity nurtured in his mind for years—he saw the means of putting agriculture on a paying basis, he saw streams of ill-housed city dwellers going back to the farm to live in abundance and to produce materials for industry.

"The high cost of tools and equipment is one of the farmer's greatest difficulties now," he said. "He can barely purchase what he needs—prices are too high—and, as for the man returning to the farm to start again, it is virtually hopeless., The capital requirement is too high.

"We will offer our new tractor at a price which any one can afford. With it he can do all sorts of work. Production is what we need on a farm and it can only be done with tractors."

But what of overproduction on the farm? Hasn't the country been plagued by farm surpluses? What of the campaign to plow under?

No Surpluses, He Says.

To Henry Ford there is no such thing as a surplus. The pressure of the surplus, he believes, will force us to discover all sorts of new uses for the annual produce of the soil.

"Our laboratories are at work now," he said, "on plans to use chemurgic products in more and more parts of the car. Only a few more experiments are necessary until we will have perfected this product until it will stand a shock as well as steel."

He called for a thin, convex sheet of a glossy substance made by a chemurgic process. It had been manufactured from soy beans or wheat chaff. He placed it on the floor and jumped on it. The piece was undamaged.

"If that was steel," he said, "it would have caved in.

"Once production of this material begins on a large scale—and we will increase tremendously. The farmer, instead of producing only the things we eat, will be producing materials for industry.

"It is the solution of the nation's troubles. Get agriculture and industry working hand in hand, and that will mean the farmer and working man are partners, inter-dependent on each other."

BUCYRUS HIKES TEACHERS' PAY

Board Votes $10,000 Increase In Appropriations For '38 at First Meeting.

(News-Journal Special)

BUCYRUS—An appropriation increase for the 1938 school year amounting to more than $10,000, and a salary schedule for grade and high school teachers calling for increases over last year were adopted by the Bucyrus city school board at a reorganization meeting last night at the high school.

The 1938 appropriation calls for $147,369.25 for operating the schools during the year, an increase of $10,000 over the 1937 figure. It covers an increase in salaries of teachers, principals, superintendent, and janitors, and also in the amount alloted for building and ground improvements.

The board also allocated $3,150 for water bills for the school year, an increase of $2,150 over the 1937 appropriation, and also voted to pay a delinquent water bill of $2,400, handing a check for that amount to Mayor George Dustman at the close of the meeting.

Under the new salary schedule, elementary salaries will range from $850 to $1,250, and those of high school teachers will range from $1,050 to $1,800. The maximum salary for principals was set at $1,475.

H. A. Paxton was elected president of the board for one year, succeeding H. E. Cook. Others elected are Dr. W. D. Carlisle, vice-president, and Miss Ethel Mutchler, re-elected clerk.

One new member was added to the board last night. He was Roy Widman. Widman succeeds Dr. T. P. Leonard, who was voted a member emeritus, and was presented with a gift by the board.

A report given on enrollment in the schools showed an increase over 1937. The 1938 enrollment was given at 1,667.

RAILS BUOYED BY AGREEMENT TO HELP B. & O.

Recover Substantially After RFC Reveals Plans to Loan $8,000,000.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks ran into profit realizing after an early rallying flourish in today's market.

Opening gains of fractions to 2 points were halved near the second hour. Activity dwindled.

Rails were the best performers, buoyed by agreement of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., subject to I. C. C. approval, to pull the Baltimore & Ohio out of a hole to the tune of about $8,000,000. Stocks and Bonds of this road recovered substantially.

Carrier Bonds generally improved. Commodities were uneven.

Traders who watch bank clearings for clues to business trends found little cheer in the Dun & Bradstreet figures for the week ended Wednesday. It was estimated the total for 22 cities was off 11.1 per cent from the corresponding 1937 period.

On the other side of the picture was the hopeful announcement of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. that it stands ready to invest $100,000,000 in low rental housing as soon as such investment is authorized by a bill recommended by New York's Governor Lehman.

FIGHTS CHARGE SISTER FILED

Los Angeles Man Denies He Forced Three of Family to Roam Nude In Hills.

was that one day last September he came home, announced that he was Jesus Christ, destroyed all the furniture and food in the house except a bag of walnuts, and took his elderly mother, his brother Joe, and Joe's wife Becky, away with him in his automobile.

They went into the rough canyon country 30 miles from the city, and there, according to the complaint, he held the family under his domination, forced them to live in a cave "like animals," while he ran about nude.

Mrs. Dorothy Silverman heard about it, she swore in her complaint, from the mother, Mrs. Rebecca Silverman, 62, who returned from the hills last Sunday.. It was alleged that Mark had Joe take the mother to town in the car; that Joe put her out a block from their home and she was so weak from the ordeal of four months in the wilderness that she had to crawl to the house on her hands and knees.

All these things Mark Silverman denied.

"We left Sept. 20 with some food and went up to take a habitation at this place for our health," he told the sheriff's men. He said the family went along voluntarily and enjoyed the stay.

"We don't believe in nudism or any other wrongdoing. But we do love nature and we have a right to live this way, so long as we break no laws."

Joe's wife agreed with him.

"We don't drink, smoke or use narcotics," she said. "I have never been so happy in my life as I was with Joe and Mark up in those hills."

The sheriff had Mark put in the psycopathic ward of the County General hospital, nevertheless, until he is arraigned tomorrow before Superior Judge Ben B. Lindsey for for a hearing on Monday.

retired $16,000 in bonds leaving the total bonded indebtedness of the department at $62,000. The debt payment in 1936 was $17,000.

Business conditions are reflected in the meter figures for the past year, the department having approximately 10,000 active meters at the end of 1937 as against a total of 9,700 at the close of the previous year.

The average daily water consumption during 1937 was approximately 3½ million gallons daily, while in 1936 Mansfield consumed an average of 3 million gallons daily, McMullen said.

Nearly 200 new customers were brought into the department last year by extensions of 17,386 feet of new mains, while in 1936 approximately 150 new customers were added with 4,400 feet of extensions.

During the year 419 new meters were set as compared to 214 in 1936. The department repaired 2,675 meters last year and 2,300 in 1936.

300 Planes Hunt Missing Navy Bomber

Weds Heiress To $7,000,000

—Central Press Photo.

Val Ernie, orchestra leader, may not have been playing Lohengrin here to Mrs. Irene Shreeve Woodworth, widow of a perfume manufacturer who left $7,000,000, but it was something equally as romantic. For the two were married at Stuart, Fla., at the county judge's office. The bride gave her age as 35. Ernie, whose real name is Ernest Peter Vallee, said he was 34.

FOG HAMPERS SEARCH FOR 7 LOST AT SEA

ON 'ROUTINE FLIGHT'

Naval Cadet Lost In Tumble From Plane During Hunt Off San Pedro.

SAN PEDRO, Calif. — (AP) — Three hundred navy planes and 24 warships searched the seas between Santa Barbara and San Diego today for a giant service patrol bomber missing since Wednesday with seven men aboard.

Meantime, naval officials disclosed that Seth P. Hawkins, cadet attached to the cruiser Chicago, fell from the rear cockpit seat of a light plane yesterday and disappeared into the Pacific 100 miles offshore

The plane was engaged in a "routine flight"

Pilot Reports Tragedy.

The pilot, Aviation Cadet J H Mack, jr., reported Hawkins' loss on his return to the fleet base here, but was unable to say whether a sudden downdraft had "bounced" him from the plane.

Confidence the missing patrol bomber would be found was expressed by Capt. Alva D. Bernhard, chief of staff, to rear Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the aircraft scouting force.

Fog hampered the search by battleships, cruisers, destroyers and two coast guard cutters last night and partly cloudy weather was forecast for today.

Activities Secret.

Secrecy shrouded activities of the missing plane, which was a member of the VP-7 squadron of Patrol Wing One, but it was reported engaged in bombing practice off Santa Barbara Battleships had been in gunnery maneuvers in that area

Aboard were:

Lieut Truman E Carpenter, 28, pilot, of Passumpsic, Vt

Aviation Cadet Philip O Browning, 28, co-pilot, Lees Summit, Mo.

Edgar Anglin, aviation chief machinist mate, 37; Norfolk, Va.

G. A. Mills, 22 radioman, third class Prescott, Mich

C C Creech 22 aviation machinist mate, third class Richland, N. Y.

William Erbe, 52 aviation chief machinist mate San Diego

Joe Adair, 21, radioman third class, Caruthersville, Mo

Navy officers suggested the craft may have been forced down and its radio disabled They said it was capable of floating out a rough storm.

Davey Goes Before Ohio Parole Jury

Governor to Be Quizzed About Painter Pardon, Other Releases.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The perhaps unprecedented occasion of an Ohio governor testifying before a grand jury was eagerly awaited by the capital today.

Gov. Martin L. Davey, some of whose pardons and commutations of convicts' sentences have been under the scrutiny of the special grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in the state parole system, was the principal witness on the jury's program.

Veteran state house observers could not recall a governor appearing before a grand jury in this state. Gov. Judson Harmon was invited in for questioning by Atty. Gen. Edward C Turner in connection with the legislative bribery investigation of 1911 but when he discovered thata stenographer was taking notes of his remarks, he left in anger.

Former Gov. George White testified before the parole jury for an hour and a half last week

Governor Davey was invited to appear before the grand jury, and was not subpoenaed

The jury, bound by law to secrecy, was unable to comply with his request to make public his testimony Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy said though, that the governor himself could disclose his testimony in a public statement.

The jury has questioned numerous physicians and nurses in the last week in connection with a pardon the governor granted to Kenyon V. Painter, former Cleveland banker Painter was released from prison, on the ground he was seriously ill and in "imminent danger of death," after serving four months of a 1-to-10-year term for misapplication of funds.

The inquiry body also has investigated the governor's action in commuting to life imprisonment the death sentence of Alva (Pete) Conners of Akron, convicted of killing a man in a cafe brawl

The attorney general said Arch W. Naylor, who has admitted helping numerous prisoners obtain paroles, would be cited for contempt for not obeying a subpoena to appear before the jury again.

Mrs. William Elliott of Canton, whose husband was reported to have obtained a parole with Naylor's help, testified yesterday.

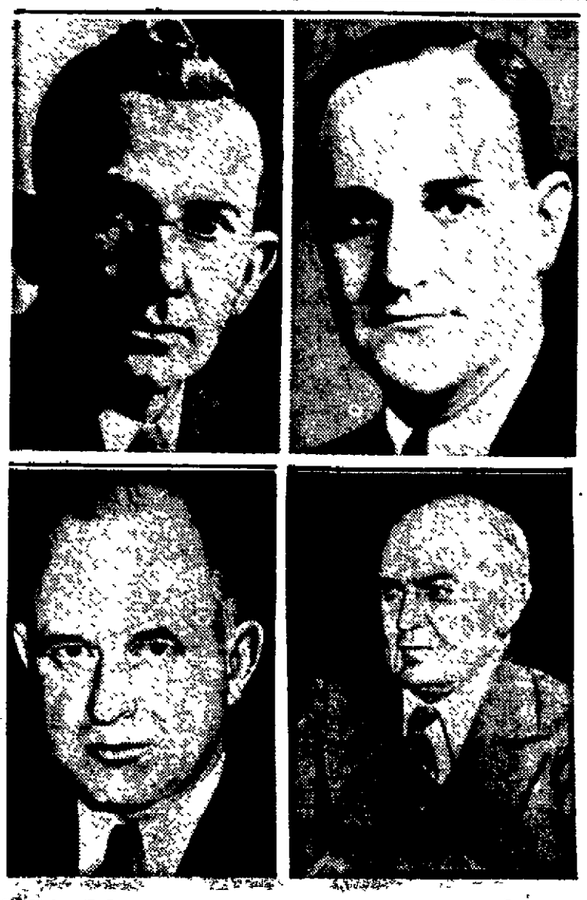
Although Richland county officials still had no formal word from Attorney General Herbert S Duffy concerning a special grand jury here as part of the Ohio parole investigation, The News-Journal learned on reliable authority that a formal request for the summoning of a jury would be placed before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston next Monday, Jan 10

Under the law, the convening of a special grand jury must be advertised at least six days before the date it is to meet, Judge Huston said today.

If the request is made Monday, the advertisement could be placed in newspapers Tuesday, Judge Huston pointed out, and the panel could be seated on the following Monday, permitting the inquiry to start on schedule.

Four Court 'Candidates'



Pictured here are four men whose names are mentioned as possibilities for the supreme court to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Justice George Sutherland. Top left is Appellate Judge Samuel G. Bratton, of Albuquerque, N. M. Top right is Senator Sherman Minton, of Indiana. Lower left is Solicitor General Stanley F. Reed and lower right is Representative Hatton W. Sumner, court packing foe, who was endorsed for the post yesterday by the house of representatives.

Huston Joins In Curfew Demand

Opposes Extension of Hours In Letter to Committee Head.

CITES DIVORCES

Judge Would Bar Youths Under 21 From All Liquor Spots.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston joined today in protesting the extension of the closing hour for Mansfield night clubs from 1 a. m. to 2:30 a. m., stating that "I am of the opinion that the closing time not only should not be extended, but boys and girls under 21 should not be permitted to visit these places."

Judge Huston's opinion, contained in a letter to Councilman Russell D. Porch, chairman of a city council committee named to study the advisability of the extension, was in line with the opposition expressed by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and Probate Judge C. J. Anderson in previous letters.

Cites 'Over-Indulgence.'

The three jurists had been asked by Porch to submit their views on the proposed closing hour extension. A city ordinance calls for closing of liquor establishments at 1 a. m. and at midnight on Saturdays, but it has never been enforced.

"I believe that a much larger number of those who visit places where intoxicating liquors are sold over indulge after 12 o'clock than prior to 12 o'clock," Judge Huston said.

Citing the effects of lax liquor enforcement on divorce cases handled in his court, Judge Huston said, "It might be interesting to know that prior to the repeal of the 18th amendment, the records show that not more than one out of six divorces was granted on account of the excessive use of intoxicating liquors. At the present time, however, in from four to five cases out of six, the evidence shows the excessive use of intoxicants."

Invites Skeptics to Court.

Offering to back his opinion with specific evidence, Judge Huston added that "if anyone takes issue with what I have said, I would be glad to have him come into court when divorce cases are being heard, and listen to the tragedies of life, and then say that the conducting of the liquor business in Mansfield is not a failure."

In answer to the arguments of proponents of the closing extension who contend that early closing in the city would drive

J. F. UHLICH, 70, FIRST TRAFFIC VICTIM OF '38

Auto Carried Down Tracks By Freight, Crushed Between Engine, Steel Bridge.

BODY PINNED IN WRECKAGE

Operated Bakery In City For 45 Years; Funeral to Be Held Sunday Afternoon.

Joseph F. Uhlich, 70, of 443 Marion avenue, proprietor of the J. F. Uhlich bakery and one of the oldest bakers in this section of the state, was instantly killed at 7 a. m. today when his automobile was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio freight train travelling east at the Bowman street crossing. It was the first fatal traffic accident of 1938 in Mansfield.

The automobile was carried 40 feet down the tracks by the slow moving freight and crushed between the engine and a steel bridge just east of Bowman street.

Richland County's 1938 Traffic Toll

This date last year [illegible]

City firemen from No. 2 company under the direction of Capt. R. J. Shively with the aid of a wrecking crew summoned from a downtown garage worked for an hour and a half in extricating the body that was pinned in the mangled iron and steel. Gasoline escaping from the crushed tank of the auto created a fire hazard and acetylene torches brought to the scene could not be used.

The wrecking crew experienced difficulty in removing parts of the car which were entangled with the driver wheels of the locomotive, before they were able to remove Mr. Uhlich's body.

The aged baker, who has operated a wholesale bakery in Mansfield for the past 45 years had left his home at 6:50 a. m. and was on his way to work at his establishment at 429 Springmill street, when the accident occurred.

The crossing was blocked for more than two hours. Police detoured traffic over West Sixth and Springmill streets.

When emergency train crews had cleared away the wreckage,

Raps U. S. Attempts To 'Scare Business'

Sears-Roebuck President Says Ickes, Jackson Addresses Helped to Lessen Confidence; Hits Gold Program, Halt of Spending.

WASHINGTON—President Robert E. Wood of Sears-Roebuck company today charged before the senate unemployment investigating committee that recent addresses of Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson were "calculated to scare business."

Wood, in response to questions by Committee Chairman James F. Byrnes, D., S. C., said, however, that the president's message to congress was "reassuring."

In presenting his views Wood said that while he might be described as an "economic royalist" he had supported "every reform measure the administration has put in."

Lacks Confidence.

"Business lacks confidence and is scared," he said. "You just take what has happened in the last 10 days. Those speeches (by Ickes and Jackson) were calculated to scare business."

Major factors contributing to business recession, according to Wood, were:

1. The government's gold sterilization program, which he termed "deflationary."

2. Cessation of government spending at a time when business was unable to "prime the pump" with private capital.

3. Acquisition of large inventories in the spring during threat of labor strikes and inability to move goods.

Wood followed William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, in testifying before the committee.

Knudsen yesterday predicted an upturn in business in the spring, but flatly opposed a suggestion by Senator James Byrnes, chairman of the committee, that corporations should use their surpluses to keep men at work instead of laying them off.

Both Byrnes and Senator

7 MILLIONS OFF

All Counties Fall Behind In Sales Tax Receipts.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley said today that collections from prepaid sales tax receipts for the year ending Dec. 25, 1937, were about $7,000,000 less than collections for the same period the previous year.

Despite an increase of nearly $40,000 in sales tax receipts during Christmas week, totalling $1,082,888 in 1937, the collections for the year showed a decrease previously predicted by Tax Commissioner Walter Mitchell.

Not a single county showed an increase in 1937 collections over 1936 Knisley's report showed.

Mitchell, predicted the decrease because of food exemptions, nonresident exemptions and the lack of sufficient money to employ inspectors.

DAVIES TO TAKE BELGIUM POST

Roosevelt Says Ambassador Will Be Shifted From Russia.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today that Joseph E. Davies, ambassador to Russia, would be transferred and made ambassador to Belgium. The change will take place in the spring. Davies will succeed Hugh Gibson.

At his press conference, the president said he did not know at this time where Gibson would be placed. There have been reports he would retire.

Mr. Roosevelt also announced today the appointment of Charles V. McLaughlin of Omaha, Neb., to be assistant secretary of labor.

FRANK ACCEPTS

Consents to Head Republican Program Committee.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin, accepted the chairmanship of the newly formed program committee of the Republican party today and appealed for non-partisan co-operation to relieve the "gravity of a situation which cuts across all sections and all groups."

Frank's message of acceptance said he was accepting the new post without "any prior obligation."

SELL AUTO TAGS MARCH 1

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Frank West, state registrar of motor vehicles today announced that the annual sale of motor vehicle licenses would begin "about March 1" Use of the 1938 tags will be permitted on and after March 10 and must be on all automobiles by April 1.

WOMAN SLAIN

Blond Strangled By Lace On Dress, Police say.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—The body of an unidentified, pretty blond woman, apparently about 25, was found along a highway on the west side of Detroit, today.

The woman had been strangled by a piece of lace from her own dress and had been struck on the head.

ESCAPE DEATH

8 Shaken Up as Plane Lands In Swamp During Storm.

NEWARK, N. J — (AP) — A transport airliner carrying five men passengers and a crew of three squashed down in the mud and water of a treacherous swamp today when its pilot undershot Newark airport during the storm-swept early morning hours.

The plane came down shortly after 3 a. m. until dawn the passengers stayed inside the protecting cabin waiting for help. Pilot Usher Rousch of Chicago plunged through the marsh in the dark to the airport three miles away, led a rescue party back to return the passengers to safety.

Rousch suffered a cut over one eye in the bumpy landing but none of the others, the airline said, was injured

BALL LEAVES SOCIETY SLEEPY

1,200 Blue Bloods Attend White House Party.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Capital society—the kind with a big "S"—breakfasted rather late today after a ball attended by 1,200 blue bloods from up and down the east coast.

Earlier last evening President Roosevelt gave his annual dinner for the vice president.

Most of the 80 guests invited to dine off the formal gold plate were government officials, but among others was William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

An additional 250 guests came for the after-dinner music.

Later many of the White House guests went to the Mayflower hotel for the annual velvet ball, shifted from New York to the capital this year.

KILLED IN WRECK

Woman Dies, 3 Others Hurt As Train Hits Taxi.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Lorraine Crosby, 24, was injured fatally and two young women companions and a taxicab driver were hurt seriously today in an automobile-train collision in suburban Reading.

Mildred Schultz, 23, and Caroline Stoechl, 24, suffered multiple injuries and Milton Niemiller, 45, driver of the car in which the women were returning from work to their homes, was less seriously hurt.

Judge Delays Hearing On Suit To Invalidate Auto Title Law

Refusing to grant a temporary injunction in common pleas court against the operation of the new state automobile certificate of title law in Richland county, Judge C. H. Huston today continued hearing on the case to Feb. 1.

The continuance was granted at the request of Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and Attorney Donald Greek of Columbus, attorney for the Ohio State Automobile association, who represented the defendant county officials at the hearing.

In granting the continuance, Judge Huston pointed out that there would be no registration system to replace the present set-up in the county should a temporary injunction be allowed.

He asked counsel for both sides to prepare briefs of their arguments to submit to him and called on Marriott to investigate further the status of he law, which he described as "too broad to permit hasty action."

The petition for an injunction was filed by Atty. H. M. Rust of Mansfield as a taxpayer, and charged that the state law is unconstitutional in that it encroaches upon the federal law regarding the importation of automobiles into Ohio and places illegal demands on the county clerk of courts. John C. O'Donnell of the law firm of Nist and O'Donnell represented Rust.

Ford Sees America on Way To 'Most Prosperous' Era

Holds Keystone to New Prosperity to Be Use of Farm By-Products for Manufacturing Industrial Goods.

DEARBORN—(U.P.)—Henry Ford believes America is entering the most prosperous era of its history.

The prosperity he sees will be one in which industry and agriculture are linked by an inseparable bond to banish depression.

This new day, the nation's No. 1 individualist and pioneer automobile manufacturer told the United Press today, "is at hand."

Its keystone will be the use of agriculture by-products in the manufacture of industrial goods.

Its spark-plug, he believes, will be a new tractor which soon will go into mass production at the Ford River Rouge plant. The tractor will be so cheap that every tiller of the soil from the dirt farms of New Jersey to the broad Kansas plains may buy it.

Autos From Wheat.

The time is virtually here, Ford told the United Press, when almost an entire automobile—body fenders, doors and paneling—may be constructed out of wheat chaff, soy beans, corn husks, or other farm by-products.

"This new alliance of agriculture and industry," Ford predicted, "will be the salvation of both. It will produce the greatest period of prosperity the country ever has known.

"And I'll put this thing over if it's the life of me," he added, smiling.

Ford vibrant with visions of

BRITONS BEATEN

Japanese Attack Policemen In Shanghai Area.

SHANGHAI — (U.P.) — British authorities reported today that two British municipal policemen had been beaten by Japanese troops in the latest incident involving Japanese ever increasing aggressiveness in the foreign-controlled international settlement.

The attack took place last night on Brennan road, on the extreme western edge of the settlement, where several British troops were killed in the early days of the Japanese campaign against Shanghai.

A Turner and F. G. West were the policemen beaten. Turner was the first man mauled about when he advised the Japanese troops he thought it unnecessary for them to search a certain Chinese civilian. West was beaten when he came to Turner's assistance. Neither was injured seriously.

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Portions of a man's body were found along the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks early this morning. Two legs, an arm and part of a face were found, after an engineer reported seeing a shoe along the track. The torso was not found.

GETS TAX REFUND

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Federal Judge Paul Jones today ruled that the U. S. government must return to Mrs. Fredena Wilkins of Warren, O., $2,206 which was collected from her late husband, Charles M. Wilkins, in the form of income tax which was illegally assessed.

Mansfielder Who Served as White House Governess Dies

Mrs. Jennie Nolan, 132 Lexington avenue, one time governess to the children of the late President Grover Cleveland and of Emily Post, nationally known authority on etiquette, died at her home yesterday following a long illness.

A native of Braunschweig, Germany, Mrs. Nolan came to Mansfield 30 years ago with her husband, John J. Nolan, and her family, and had resided here since then.

Although she had lived in this city for more than a quarter of a century, few persons, outside her family and intimate friends knew the interesting phases of her life in her earlier years.

As Jennie Schultz, a young German girl of fine background and good education, she had served as governess to children of American celebrities, and numbered among her friends many of the great personages of the 1890's.

3 CHILDREN DIE

Find Burned Fuse Stretched to Blast-Wrecked House.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. — (AP) —Three children were killed and their mother was seriously injured early today when dynamite wrecked their home near here.

Deputy Sheriff Asher said officers were working on a theory the blast was the outgrowth of a slaying in 1936.

The dead: Sonia Gouge, 9; Luena Gouge, 7, and Roma Gouge, 5. Mrs. Harmon Gouge, 34, was injured.

Harmon Gouge, 35, father and husband of the victims, was at Johnson City at the time of the blast.

Officers found a burned fuse stretching from the house 30 feet across a road.

Asher said Gouge is the self-confessed slayer of Arnold Tollett, killed at a filling station near here in October, 1936, and is at liberty under $10,000 bond awaiting trial.

Ashbrook Offers 'Compromise' On War Referendum

Congressman William A. Ashbrook, representative of Richland county and the 17th Ohio district in Washington, has introduced in the house a new resolution concerning American entry into war, Associated Press dispatches from Washington said today.

Ashbrook's proposal would permit congress to declare war when the United States or any nation affected by the Monroe doctrine was invaded. In cases when there was no invasion, a national referendum would be required before the United States could go to war.

Ashbrook's proposal is a variation of the plan of Representative Louis Ludlow, of Illinois, who first introduced the referendum idea.

Ludlow's proposal was held in committee through most of the recent special session of congress, but was finally brought out on the floor when 218 members of the house signed a petition to release the resolution from committee Ashbrook helped to obtain the necessary number of signers.

REPORTS ON U. S. PROBE OF NAZIS

Hoover Sends Bulky Records of Findings Made by G-Men In Check of Nation.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—J Edgar Hoover has reported to Attorney General Cummings results of a five months investigation by G-men into nation-wide activities of the German-American Bund—a Nazi-inspired organization headed by Fritz Kuhn, of New York.

The director of the federal bureau of investigation made no recommendations for legal action against the organization, Cummings told a press conference, leaving any conclusions of law to the justice departments criminal division, headed by Assistant Attorney General Brien McMahon.

Hoover's report was a bulky one, filling 11 large folders and an index of more than a thousand pages. It covers "all angles" of the German-American organization, Cummings said, including divisions in the east, mid-west and west. A separate section was devoted to that department of the Bund active in New Jersey.

Photograps and charts as well as financial statements were included.

Cummings ordered Hoover to make the investigation last August 18 at the request of Representative Citron (D-Conn.). Citron told the attorney general he had received information indicating that 17 alleged Nazi training camps had been established in this country and asked that the department of justice determine whether the camps weer operating in violation of any federal laws.

2 'EARLY BIRDS' IN COURT RACE

Hart of Alliance and Boyd of Middletown Announce Candidacies.

Two "early bird" candidates, both Republicans, announced today that they were seeking Ohio supreme court posts, subject to the August primaries

They are William L. Hart of Alliance, former judge of the state supreme court, and Clinton D. Boyd, Middletown attorney and former jurist.

Hart is a candidate for one of the two associate justice posts to be filled at the election next November, and Boyd is seeking the office of chief justice

A former president of the Ohio Bar association Hart has been an attorney for 35 years and for a number of years has given free lectures on international laws at Mt. Union college, of which he is a trustee. He was elected to the Ohio supreme court in 1934 for a short term, but was defeated by a fep hundred votes for re-election in 1936.

At 54, Judge Boyd has practiced law for 20 years and served eight years on the bench in Butler county. He was defeated for judge of the supreme court at the 1934 primary election, although he received more than 200,000 votes and carried a majority of the counties in the state.

HEAD 'TICKS'

Scientists Are Puzzled by CCC Youth's Malady.

CAMP REECHERS, Ore.—(INS)—Walter Saberly, CCC trooper here, carries a "ticker" with him wherever he goes. Saberly's "ticker" is in his head which gives off an audible "tick" similar to that of a clock The oddity has never been solved by scientists, although Saberly has been placed under observation several times. It pains him infrequently, and then is similar to the twinges caused by an attack of neuralgia.

PICKS GROUP TO PROBE PENSIONS

House Committee Seeks To Check Advisability of Increasing Checks.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— A three-member subcommittee to investigate the status of old age pension rolls was appointed by the House Finance committee in a meeting in which Gov. Davey's order increasing payments 10 per cent was denounced as a "political" move.

The committee, called to consider a bill to appropriate $17,500,000 for 1938 pensions, decided to delay action until the subcommittee reports next Monday after it was pointed out that about 4,000 of the 19,447 applications had not been acted upon.

"If there are 4000 persons entitled to pensions who aren't getting paid, why did the governor order the 10 per cent increase for the 104,000 already getting payments?" demanded Rep. J. Harry McGregor, R., Coshocton.

"Why weren't at least some of the 4000 put on the rolls and given this money instead of increasing the payments of those already on the list?"

Rep. McGregor charged that "we've got what amounts to a dictatorship, so far as the pension division is concerned."

FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1938.

If private business were handled as inefficiently as public business there wouldn't be any.

Students of astronomy have an advantage over most folks when it comes to reading about the national debt.

Close to six hundred reservations have been made for the $25-a-plate Jackson day dinner in Columbus—and wouldn't "Old Hickory" be surprised!

Great Opportunity for Farm Youth.

ANY organization intended to encourage sound and constructive thinking by young Americans is well worthwhile and should be given all possible encouragement.

Such an organization is the Richland County Youth Council, sponsored by the county farm bureau and intended to bring together young men and women of farms and rural communities for better acquaintanceship and group study of subjects of common interest.

The advantages of higher average standards of capability among farmers has long been recognized, with rules for success or failure applying to farmers as well as to others.

While the past couple of generations have inclined toward a movement of capable young people away from farms there is now evidence of an increasing understanding that agriculture offers a fine field of opportunity for men and women who are intelligent and industrious and who learn the things that they must know in order to be successful farmers.

And also, in matters of clear thinking on subjects of public interest, it has been found that farmers constitute a dependable group in which the fundamentals of real Americanism have carried through the years, unshaken by the evanescent "isms" which sometimes temporarily disturb the more heterogeneous urban communities.

The young men and women whose homes are now on Richland county farms deserve credit for their determination to make ready for responsibilities they are soon to assume, and also to acquaint themselves with all matters having to do with the privileges and duties of citizenship.

Why Elsie Robinson Is Sewing.

READ Elsie Robinson's "Listen World" article on this page today. You may not agree with all she says—but it will give you something to think about.

For thoughtful readers, there is more in this article than the mere words of the author.

There is an explanation of the causes for the plight in which many poverty-stricken people in the United States now find themselves.

There is a hint at the wastefulness and indolence of many of those who have become public charges and who constitute a frightful drain on workers.

There is revelation that, in many instances, profligate use of public money for relief has tended to encourage many people in the belief that the government is obligated to take care of them and their dependents during the course of their lifetime—without effort on their own part.

Read the article—think of the continued unrestricted propagation of subnormal children by physically and mentally unfit parents—consider the over-crowded prisons and public institutions for the insane and other defectives—and you must wonder at the inadequacy of any program that goes no further than providing "relief" without taking into account the necessity of reducing and eventually eliminating the CAUSES that make a large percentage of such expenditures necessary.

Beware of Prejudice.

THERE are some international incidents worth noting because of the contrast they present to the wars now being waged. One such was the recent meeting of the National Assembly of Student Christian Associations at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. Delegates from more than a dozen different countries were there, among them being T. Z. Koo, a prominent Chinese youth leader, and Tou Matsumoto, a Japanese student at the Union Theological Seminary in New York.

The young Japanese is on a committee actively engaged in raising funds for the relief of Chinese students in China. The young Chinese, on the other hand, is trying to stem the rising tide of hatred of Japan. In a speech he warned others, and American youth in particular, against "clever propaganda" for building up ill-feeling here against Japan. In China, he said, among Chinese students, he had found no such hatred toward the Japanese as he now finds in the United States.

There is such a thing as being so neutral that it results in wishy-washy inability to distinguish right from wrong or justice from injustice. That is hardly the attitude the charitable Chinese youth is urging. There is also such a thing as being so blindly partisan as to miss these vital distinctions. Balance and clarity of understanding are important in such times as these if the world's ills are ever to be cured.

Long-Distance Power.

DURING a discussion of rare metals by the American Chemical Society, Dr. C. W. Balke of Chicago told of the remarkable properties of a metal called "columbium." It readily absorbs gases when heated in a vacuum tube. It is very resistant to heat and corrosion, and remarkably well adapted to carrying high-power electric currents.

Thus, says Dr. Balke, it is available for use in certain types of high-powered electronic tubes which transform alternating current from power plants into "pulsating direct currents."

Here the peculiar value of columbium appears. The pulsating direct currents can be sent by wire to a much greater distance than alternating currents of the usual type, with very little loss of power. With its use, currents from power plants, now practically limited to 150 or 200 miles, may be transmitted over a radius of 500 miles. This is said to have been accomplished by the hydro-electric plant in Dnieperstroy, Russia.

Word comes that a Leesburg editor offers $10,000 to the first quintuplets born in the corporate limits of that town in 1938—of which amount he has probably already accumulated all except $9,998.50.

Congress Floundering, Unequal To Big Task

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Congress is pretty nearly stalled.

Having listened to President Roosevelt's initial message, it is trying to settle down to the job of doing something, but it cannot agree on what to do.

I can sympathize with the lawmakers. I heard the president's Jan. 3 talk on Capitol Hill and endeavored to draw some conclusions from it. My editorial chief remarked that these conclusions were the same that many others had drawn already. He suggested. Why not peer a bit into the future and prophesy what the executive recommendations hint at in the long run.

But it is difficult to forecast from a state paper of today what said paper will lead the country into some months hence if you have no very clear idea what today's state paper means.

NOT MUCH PROGRESS.

That is the fix congress is in.

After the president had left the capitol Jan. 3 the house of representatives plunged right on into debate — abortively, of course. The senate more sensibly took a 48-hour recess, hoping to decide on what it was expected to do. This interval for reflection did not do it any good, to be sure.

Indications are that the current regular congressional session will be precious little more productive than was the extra session just past.

GLOOMY VIEW.

The regular session will not, indeed, be so complete a vacuum as the extra session was.

Some appropriation bills will have to be passed.

I will venture to predict a billion or two for national defense —that bug seems to be popular now. We have our neutralityites and our Ludlowites and our miscellaneous pacifists but they are in an obvious minority.

It will be acknowledged that we cannot balance the budget yet.

INTERNAL QUESTIONS.

But most of our internal questions?

Monopoly, housing, agriculture, taxation relief versus work relief, wages and hours?

All that will hang fire.

And in general labor versus capital or vice versa?

Congress does not know the administration's position on the practicalities of those issues and it is hopelessly split as to its own.

SPLIT ON ITS VIEWS.

Congress' position politically is perfectly terrible.

It is mostly Democratic. Unless it stays cohesive at this session many of its members will lose their seats this year—to Republicans or to opposing Democrats.

These endangered Democrats do not care a hoot for the administration. Their chief concern is to keep their own jobs.

Among them their interests conflict as widely as Democratic-Republican interests conflict.

Republicans, few as they are, also are split.

In this polyangular contest try to do some guessing.

My guess, since I'm invited, is that the Democrats will lose considerably at this year's elections and finally that the old-line parties will divide in some new way.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON—

A Nation of Helpless Hands.

THINGS are happening in this America which puzzle me—which make me feel angry and frightened . . .

Perhaps it's because I'm so tired. For the last two weeks I've spent every hour I could spare from my work, sewing. Pounding the treadle of an old-fashioned sewing machine—turning out endless bundles of flannelette nightgowns, underslips, house dresses. Why didn't I buy the things ready made? For one thing, I've been too far away from store counters—in the backwoods. For another, it's beyond my purse. Figure as you may, "ready mades" aren't as cheap as home mades—not if you buy by the belt.

So I've been sewing. And wondering. There was one family in particular. Six youngsters — the oldest eleven, the youngest a baby of nine months—and a mother and father. Not a pair of shoes nor a stitch of underwear in the house. Three little girls going to school through mountain snow—barefoot. Yes, the town folk had sent out some hand-me-downs. But the mother can't sew.

"The Missis can't sew . . . says it's cheaper to buy store stuff." Take any trail through the mountains or plains or little valley towns, and you'll hear that same refrain. Everywhere, heaps of left-overs . . . "But maw can't sew . . . doesn't know how to cut 'em over."

And the men are getting to be about as bad. These new trailer camps—Clutters of Dust Bowl refugees—makeshift shacks of government workers . . . the new generation that's growing up on relief . . . the boys are as bad as the girls. All of them able to tinker with automobiles — but that lets them out. Can't build a chicken house or roof a cabin . . . hang a door or shape a window frame.

Once — not so long ago — you'd ride the better part of a week before you'd find an American, male or female, who wasn't handy with his fingers. Now they answer such a question with a snicker or yawn. Sew? Why should they — when there's always ready-mades? Build? What's the idea—when there's always relief.

"NO ONE SHALL STARVE IN AMERICA!"

Remember how heartening that promise sounded, when we first heard it back in '32? And the cash! Nice lighting with joy . . . and the hungry flesh quivering with hope!

"NOBODY STARVE . . . a blessed promise! But I'm beginning to wonder . . . if there aren't times when we see this thirst and more shameful than hunger.

A nation of helpless hands . . . Empty stomachs because "the missis can't cook" . . . bare backs because "the missis can't sew" . . . rootless shacks because "dad usta be a clerk but now he's on relief." A NATION ON RELIEF! Is or isn't that worse than starvation?

For five years now, I've sewed like that. Going up and down the mountains — out over the desert. Going into mining camps of twenty-three families. The new gypsy-American breed, where not one wife had a sewing machine or could make a shirt on a bet. More families like that this year than there were the year before. More such families the year before than the year before that.

My God, where's it going to end?

Nations are built on different things . . . different standards and ideals. Old world nations were built on educated classes, sweating masses. A good enough system for those who like it.

But our forefathers didn't like it. They didn't believe in non-sweaters, educated or otherwise. They built on DEMOCRACY and INDEPENDENCE and SELF-RESPECT. Everyone doing his share. Every man able and proud to build his own chicken house, plough his own field. Every woman able and proud to sew her own skirt and cook her own stews. And now? Fill in the blanks yourself.

Government? I don't know a thing about it. I'd make a mess of it if I tried. But you can bet your last nickel on this — IF I WERE HANDING OUT RELIEF, NO WOMAN WOULD GET A CENT UNTIL SHE'D ENROLLED IN A COOKING AND SEWING COURSE . . . NO MAN SHOULD HAVE A DIME UNTIL HE'D SQUARED OFF WITH A HAMMER AND SAW.

No starving Americans? That's just dandy. BUT HOW ABOUT A NATION OF BUMS?

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Jan. 7, 1918.

John Krause was elected president of the Bank of Mansfield, to succeed B. J. Balliett.

No school at Brinkerhoff building on account of bursted pipes.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shibinski, Lily street.

Mrs. David Massa, 92, died at her home, 112 South Adams street.

C. S. Hill was elected president of school board, of which A. E. Piper, D. O. Moore and R. F. Miller were new members.

Mrs. E. S. Thrush, 41, died.

James T. Sawhill sustained fractured leg while working at Eclipse Stove plant.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Jan. 7, 1933.

Samuel S. Finney, former Richland county commissioner, died suddenly at the home of a daughter in Newark.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl S. Bender, 64 Bentley and to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Baker, 264 Glessner avenue.

Miss Stella Sweeney, 110 West Third, returned from a West Indies cruise.

One hundred Mansfield children were quarantined with chickenpox.

Wilbur Brucker, former governor of Michigan, his wife and son, of Detroit, were guests of Mrs. W. M. Hahn, Sturges avenue.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL—

Worthless Stocks Still Being Sold.

EVEN WALL STREET senses that better protective measures will have to be adopted for the stock exchange. The trading in absolutely worthless stocks—which means that possibly somebody sells something which he knows is worth nothing, to somebody who doesn't know—may be prohibited prior to the end of the year. If the stock exchange itself does not take action, the Roosevelt administration probably will.

Stocks in bankrupt corporations, such as railroads, are an example. When reorganization finally is effected for these railroads, the common stock is wiped—and the final holders of the stock hold nothing except worthless paper.

It is strange, that, although this stock has been mere worthless paper ever since the railroads went into bankruptcy, it has fluctuated in price the same as stocks of value—not so much, of course, but enough to lead the guileless to believe that it has value.

There have been a public statement or two that Chicago & Northwestern stock is valueless—that it would be wiped out in final reorganization plans. The same evidently applies to Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific. But those stocks still are dealt in on the stock exchange.

Surely—not only Wall Street, but every investment house in the country is a trap for the unwary!

The average investor I meet—the small investor—is angry because the Roosevelt administration has not forced more safeguards through congress.

TO THE BAHAMAS!

Then there is that transaction uncovered by the senate committee investigating railroads—indicating, says the committee, that the Young-Kolbe-Kirby syndicate of New York recently took steps to place control of the Alleghany corporation, top holding company of the old Van Sweringen railroad system, in a Bahama corporation for tax-evasion purposes.

Said the New York Times:

"The inquiry disclosed, according to the committee, that Frank F. Kolbe, a member of the syndicate, transferred a substantial portion of his stock on Sept. 13 to the Seaboard Company, Ltd., a British corporation incorporated in the Bahamas, and that in the transaction Mrs. Robert R. Young, wife of Kolbe's associate, and her daughter, Elizabeth Jane Young, appeared as recipients of a portion of the Alleghany securities disposed of by Kolbe."

There is no end to this old Van Sweringen merry-go-round! No end—except to the trail of penniless investors that it flings to earth.

EACH FOR HIMSELF

When it comes to benefits derived by a weaker railroad being controlled for manipulative purposes by a larger road, there are none. One has merely to observe recent occurrences in Erie.

The Interstate Commerce commission recently gave Chesapeake & Ohio, top Van Sweringen road (the only one with money) permission to absorb Erie and Nickel Plate and Pere Marquette, which through a holding company it controls. A few days later Erie pleaded with the Reconstruction Finance corporation for $6,006,000 to meet immediate obligations. The RFC agreed, upon condition that Erie would put up sufficient security, which it could obtain from C. & O.

C. & O., or the syndicate that now controls it, refused. Whereupon Erie defaulted on $1,849,000 interest due on $85,000,000 worth of bonds in the hands of (Due to a fortunate six-month clause in the bonds, the bonds are not, however, in legal default for six months after non-payment of interest.)

This action drew a rebuke from Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC. This is reported as follows in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which hastened to Jones for an explanation from the public.

Jones said that Herbert Fitzpatrick, chairman of the C. & O., telegraphed him, declining to assist the Erie, stating that the board regards its first duty to the public and security holders is to maintain unimpaired the C. & O. resources.

"Probably," said Jones, "if the directors of the C. & O. were as interested in protecting the Erie as they are the Alleghany corporation, which receives a large part of the C. & O. dividends, their course might be different."

The Alleghany corporation is the top holding company constructed by the Van Sweringens and now owned by Robert R. Young, New York broker; a British syndicate, and Allan P. Kirby, a Woolworth heir.

It has been frequently under attack by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D) of Montana and his rail investigating committee, which has conducted lengthy hearings on the Van Sweringen setup.

Jones said that the I. C. C. had approved the Erie's application for an RFC loan on the condition that "because of the C. & O.'s large ownership in the Erie, the C. & O. either guarantee payment of the Erie loan or deposit collateral which, taken with the Erie collateral offered for the loan, would be acceptable to the RFC."

"It is well known," said the RFC chairman, "that the C. & O. is easily able to assist the Erie in this small way, and its failure to do so brings into serious question its right to own control of the road.

"According to published reports the C. & O. has invested approximately $45,000,000 in Erie stock, but is unwilling to lend it $2,500,000 or $3,000,000 in securities to protect its credit.

"This notwithstanding that in the ten-year period 1928 to 1937, inclusive, the C. & O. has paid dividends to its stockholders averaging more than $20,000,000 a year and had undistributed earnings in addition to these dividends, after all interest charges, of more than $10,000,000 a year during the same period."

RAIL LOSSES

The losses to rail companies caused by the manipulators through stock transactions from 1928 to 1938 amounts to several hundred million dollars, according to estimates at hand from testimony already given before the senate investigating committee.

That money, if it had gone into more modern equipment, would have saved those roads millions in operating costs— millions that they now so desperately need.

Now they have neither the equipment, with which to reduce expenses, nor the money to buy the equipment.

Living Standards.

Whatever is needed and also practical in order that there may be improvement in all economic conditions should, of course, be done. If there are inequities, as certainly there are, they should be removed as far as possible. Unemployment must be solved. Yet, with all these considerations, it is well to reflect that the average man, and that includes the worker, has a higher standard of living in the United States than in any other country.

The ownership of automobiles is a case. The United States has 22 automobiles per each 100 persons, and this means that we have more vehicles than all the rest of the world combined with, however, only one-sixteenth of the world's population. Even enlightened and usually prosperous Canada has only one-half the proportion, while the United Kingdom and France have each five automobiles to each 100 persons, and in dictator-controlled Germany and Italy there are two and one, respectively.

Radios, electrical equipment in the home, school attendance, college enrollment, telephones, moving pictures, books, magazines and works of art are more frequently found in American homes than elsewhere. The real fact is that America has the highest living standard to be found anywhere on earth.—Ohio State Journal.

Why Housing Program Lags.

WASHINGTON—One of the things interfering with the housing program is the age-old tradition that a man and his family should not be hastily expelled from his home for debt.

One of the means by which federal housing authorities hope to keep down the costs of financing private home building is keeping foreclosure costs low. Many states have put up high barriers against hasty foreclosure with the result that when a home building contract goes "sour" it sometimes takes many months of litigation to get the purchaser out so that a new buyer may take possession. The result is to increase the cost of financing the job—and thus to make the financing less inviting as an investment.

Eviction Expensive.

A man comes to his bank asking a contract to build a house costing $5,000. Under the new housing act he will have to pay down ten per cent, $500. The bank will lend him the rest and the Federal Housing authority will insure the whole $4,500 loan, which thus equals 90 per cent of the value of the house to be built.

When the house is built the buyer takes it over and begins paying off the loan in monthly installments. Except for the original $500 down payment, it is just like renting a house. Of course it all goes well, the buyer owns the house at the end of 17 to 20 years.

But suppose at the end of six months, or a year, the buyer loses his job, or perhaps just decides not to make any more monthly payments. What then? Under laws in some states the buyer can be expelled from the house in three weeks to a month under foreclosure proceedings. In the District of Columbia it can be done in three weeks.

But in many other states, New York and Illinois are examples, the buyer can escape eviction for a year or more, meantime making no payments and ignoring the terms of the sales contract. The Home Owners Loan corporation, also in the mortgage field, has occasionally spent two years evicting an owner who refused to make payments.

Change Comes Slow.

WHEN that happens, the loss on the deal is greater than any possible profit to the bank making the loan at 5 to 5½ per cent interest. The result has been, federal housing authorities comment, that there has been a "tendency" on the part of some banks in these long-delay foreclosure states to look two times before showing interest in these new 90 per cent loan insurance deals. The reason is that under the old 80 per cent loan operation the FHA stood the cost of the foreclosure. Under the new 90 per cent loan program the bank has to make the foreclosure and turn the house over to the FHA with the defaulting buyer already ousted.

State legislatures are being advised to change their foreclosure laws as a means of encouraging housing, but the going is slow. The old-line foreclosure laws were designed primarily to protect honest farmers and home owners from being roughly thrown into the street by a grasping mortgage holder eager to get possession of the property. The idea of making it possible for a mortgage holder to evict a man and his family from the old homestead on three or four weeks notice has not quite jelled at some spots.

WORDS OF THE WISE

A book glorifying war may be quite as anti-social and quite as obscene as one glorifying illicit love.—Haldane.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THOUGHTS while strolling: Memory — minding the colt while the mare was being shod. You somehow expect Norman-Bel Geddes and Ben Ali Haggin to be wearing turbans. If dogs do not sense friends, how is it they'll begin yipping happily when Albert Payson Terhune enters a strange poodle shop?

Lois Long is my idea of a city girl who knows all the answers. And her ex-husband, Peter Arno, is the hedgerow's idea of the city slicker. What became of Frances Williams? That Parisian dandy, Lucien Lelong — dove-toned spats, salmon pink four-in-hand and everything.

Lily Pons sounds like the peg-legged man in our town passing by on the board walk. Be fun to get Prof. Quiz into an anagram game. The boyish looking Jack Whiting, step-papa of young Doug. Add them all up and I'll still take Jerome Kern's musical score of "Showboat."

Rhyme: Cobina Wright, the socialite, puffs big cigars with much delight. Add good-looking red-heads in the business world: Ann Grosvenor Ayers and Irene Hayes. To Joan Crawford: Please plump up a little, it's far more becoming. O. Soglow, the artist, looks more like his Little King every day.

They laughed, ha, ha, when Henry Luce bought Life. Ed Wynn skims along the street as though just about to take off. And for leisurely sauntering, not many can top Charles Hanson Towne. Low ambition: To start a prairie fire in John L. Lewis's eyebrows.

The last of the white tiled and sanitized looking Child's was on the Bowery until a few weeks ago it went the way of all the rest — duded up in the flossier Spanish style. One thing, however, has not changed at the Child's places and that is the batter cakes. But there are many of us tattered sentimentalists who wish they would restore the jugglers with their snowy white uniforms to the sidewalk windows. They and the avenue Victorias haloed New York for many of us from the puddle-jump towns.

Hollywood claims another dyed-in-the-wool New Yorker in Francis Albertanti, who packed his typewriter and joined the hordes over the Santa Fe trail a few months ago—and now writes friends he is not coming back. Francis spent his boyhood in the environs of Chinatown, where his patron saint was the picturesque Chuck Conners, self-styled Mayor and lobbygow. Later Francis became a copy boy on Park Row, a typical "dese" and "dem" moppet of the lower tip of the island. And printer's ink got into his blood. He blasted his way into the Evening Mail sports department by covering self-appointed assignments for Grantland Rice and Rube Goldberg and eventually became a by-line writer. Later he became a press agent for Madison Square Garden and was always down front at the big bouts, a chunky, puckish fellow with fat cigar, still talking just a little out of the side of his mouth and inclined to snap his suspenders a bit.

There has been a lot of ink-splashing recently about the preeminence of "cafe society" in Manhattan. So much so one might easily believe the staid old order of aristocracy has vanished. That the entire social fabric was composed of youngish wine-bibbers whose mentors were the Messrs. Billingsley, Kreinder and Perona of the night clubs. Yet the staid, sedate and ultra-aristocratic Thursday night dinners still take place in season at Mrs. H. McK. Twombley's with restrictions more rigid than ever. Then the formal dinners of Mrs. Christian R. Holmes whose guests probably never saw the dawn didoes at El Morrocco or waited at the entrance ropes of "No. 21." Among the younger society crowd Mrs. Vincent Astor is still the dominant personality and at her formal dinners the bars are never let down. Many of the "people who matter" have lost much of their wealth, but not their sense of social fitness. There is a social artery that still runs blue.

No section of New York has so retained that aristocratic look as Washington Square. David Graham Phillips once referred to its residents as "the carriage trade" and that describes them today, despite the fact that a number of the old mansions have become rather seedy pensions. Somehow in the gathering dusk one would not be surprised to see through the lace curtains gentlemen with imperials indulging pinches of snuff and ladies in crinolines singing softly at organs.

REMEMBER THAT NIGHT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XXV

Already he had stayed too long. Lilyan and her father were waiting. Philip went to the dressing room door and looked at Karen—looked at her from the toes of the small sandals to the top of her dark head. The girl perfect for him. He had sought her for a long time and had believed he had found her in Lilyan and all the time she had been in Harriston with dreams in her eyes and a fighting heart . . .

He knew he wanted to remember her as she was now in that white dress, very white indeed against the colorful flowers. Where would tonight lead her? To the top of her profession, he knew, and he would help her. He would write for her. And one day he would go to her wedding . . .

"Well, Karen, you won't need me until it's time for a new play. I think "Youth Went Yesterday" will enjoy a long run." He smiled. "Don't you think we understand each other now? Do you still dislike me?"

If only she could tell him!

"I never disliked you, Philip. And I owe everything to you. Everything I shall be I owe to you. And . . ."

"And what?"

"Just . . . good night"

But Philip said, "Good-bye, my dear." And though she did not know it, he thought, they were the tenderest words he had ever spoken.

After he left, she just stood there outlined against the flowers. At least they were enemies no longer "Tonight," she thought, "I know him better than I've ever known him. He's the kindest, nicest person I've ever known in my life. He doesn't feel superior. I thought that before because I was nobody and I hated being nobody. He believed in me . . . Oh, Philip."

Turning, her fingers cupped one of the red roses he had sent. Her throat ached terribly. You must not cry. Tears are no good. Tomorrow you must buy new clothes for Philip's wedding on Wednesday. Tomorrow you'll spend more money on clothes than you've ever spent. You're a success. Empty word that—success. Footlights are only phantom things. Only love is real, the kind of love you have for Philip. And always you will love him. Always. And never will you have him. Never.

Outside Brenda said, "I'm coming in, dear."

Karen said, "Yes, come in."

Brenda was wearing a black evening dress, and carried her mink coat on her arm.

"I'll change in a minute," Karen said. "Philip was—was just here, Brenda. It was terrible wanting to say things I couldn't say! He said good-bye, 'Good-bye, my dear.' That's what he said."

Gently Brenda said, "Don't change just yet. Sit down, dear." And when Karen sat on the dressing table bench, Brenda stood over her and looked into her troubled face and took a deep breath.

"Oh, Karen, don't you know? Haven't you guessed? Don't you know that I know who you are and have known for some time?"

Karen seemed scarcely to breathe. Suddenly the dressing room filled with flowers was slightly out of focus. She felt she could not bear to hear anything else tonight. But Brenda knew! And now the questions that she had been so close to asking many times during their weeks of work and friendship would be answered! And all the other questions that had tormented her since childhood.

Who was she? Who was the young actress who had deserted her child? Who was her father?

Her brows came together "You know? I thought . . .

Brenda looked white and terrible "Let me talk, please You and I are actresses, my dear but nothing I've done or shall ever do is as dramatic or as tragic as the connection between us."

"You're not — my mother?" Karen interrupted

"No, I'm not your mother. But let me talk, please, and then I'll answer anything I don't make clear. But first let me tell you that it was Philip—Philip again—who found out about you and told me!

"You said there was a secret. He sensed drama and went to find it. Philip left town a few days after Tommy's party. He went to Harriston, went inconspicuously, and talked to a judge who told him all about you. And over long distance from England he told me not knowing and still not knowing of the connection between us!"

At her slight pause, Karen asked, "Hadn't you better sit down, Brenda?"

"No." Her eyes softened. "Karen, you may hate me when I finish telling you this. People say that my life has been an open book. No adventures, no intrigue. Just hard work and a quiet life and one man, Craig, whom I've consistently refused to marry. But there is a secret in my life, a secret and a sin, and that's why I haven't married Craig and why you may hate me. I did something almost inhuman—it was so terrible.

At another pause Karen said, "I could never hate you You've been too good to me.'

"Your mother's name was Lela Gibbs and she and I were friends as children in a small western town. The name of the town doesn't matter. We grew up together. We were inseparable companions. We both wanted to go on the stage. But I was more fortunate in having a mother who was willing for me to have a career and in having a little money my father had left to help me. But Lela's parents were dead and she'd been raised by a strict old uncle and aunt who were horrified at the thought of her wanting to be an actress

"Karen, you told me that the people in Harrison said your mother was very beautiful. She was. Beautiful and high-spirited and proud. Her aunt and uncle tried to break her spirit but they never succeeded. But she was unhappy at home until—until she fell in love with Craig.

'Yes," Brenda continued, nodding. "Craig. Are you putting the pieces together in your mind now? Lela fell in love with Craig, who had known all his life he wanted to be a doctor. But his people were very poor and he knew he had to work his way through college and medical school.

"I loved Craig, too, Karen. And all through one summer I shall never forget I saw Lela and Craig in love and trying to make plans. And I thought I'd die of jealousy And then they were married—I saw them married. And I loved him then as you love Philip now!

"My mother and I came to New York. I heard from Lela and Craig by mail. They were having a hard time with Craig in medical school, earning no money. Then she wrote and said they had a baby. You, Karen, Craig is your father!"

Karen felt tears in her eyes Craig was her father! She had always thought of her mother!

"Let me finish please," Brenda said breathlessly. "You'll have to try to picture your mother, high-spirited and ambitious in her own right, to understand what she did.

'She and Craig were very poor and something had to be done. So she got a job in a traveling company and took you along! Craig opposed it bitterly. But she went anyway. I'm sure she thought she was doing the right thing to help. There was no one she could leave you with The city where Craig was going to school was in the east They didn't know anybody except other students His people had nothing to give them and her aunt had opposed their marriage.

"That night the company went broke in Harriston. Lela was almost penniless And that night she wrote me a letter, telling me she was going to leave you in the hotel and that I should come for you. She couldn't take you with her It was winter. She had decided to go back home, back west, to try to get some money. It was the wrong thing to do, of course, but you must try to understand that she was too proud er she had defied him to go. to go back to Craig a failure aft-

"She wasn't thinking clearly that night She was young and nearly penniless and alone in a strange town with a baby. She didn't realize what she was doing. And she was so certain I would come for you at once.

"But Lela was killed the next night far from Harriston in one of the worst train wrecks in years.'

RAPS ATTEMPTS TO 'FRIGHTEN' U. S. BUSINESS

Sears-Roebuck President Says Ickes, Jackson Talks Made In 'Scare' Campaign.

Hatch, D., N. M., said they were interested in Knudsen's statement that General Motors had increased its surplus $54,000,000 last year.

'Won't Last Long."

Byrnes asked if the company had considered drawing on its surplus of more than $450,000,000, rather than discharging 30,000 men on Jan. 1. Knudsen replied that, with a payroll of $400,000,000 a year, the surplus "wouldn't last long."

He declined, in his testimony, to endorse the proposal of President Roosevelt that industrial leaders co-operate with government officials for planned production by industry.

Senator Lodge, R., Mass., asked at one point if the "attitude of government does not have a profound effect on any psychology of fear" contributing to business declines.

"Yes sir," Knudsen replied.

Following Wood to the stand was William F. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor who helped kill the administration's wage-hour bill in the special session of congress.

He advocated maximum hour regulation in industrial employment as a means of ending the slump.

Green offered a seven-point program for recovery. It included not only regulated shorter work hours but also maintenance of existing wage standards, continuation of an extended public works program, suspension of requirements for local contributions to the low-rent housing program, further stimulation of private home building, broadening of the social security program and an increased appropriation for relief.

Gives No Plan.

Despite AFL opposition to the wage-hour bill as it was drafted for the special session Green advanced today no specific plan for putting a roof over hours, or a floor under present wages.

He said merely that "labor maintains that the shortening of hours of work is an essential prerequisite to the reduction of unemployment. Legislative action to make effective this shortening of hours should be item number one on the agenda of this congress."

In the special session AFL opposition was directed chiefly at a provision of the wage-hour bill giving regulation into the hands of a commission. It was considered significant, however, that today he asked not for fixed minimum wages but for maintenance of present wage standards.

Later in the day, Homer W. Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, was to testify.

Martin obtained permission to testify soon after the committee heard Knudson, against whose company Martin led a strike last year.

The Committee for Industrial Organization already has endorsed a senate resolution providing for absorption by the Works Progress administration of "all unemployed workers who cannot find employment in private industry."

Preparing For a Life of Service

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 9 is Mark 1:1-15, the Golden Text being Mark 1:3, "Make ye ready the way of the Lord.")

A BEARER of Good news wastes no time getting to the story he has to tell. So John Mark begins his account of the "good news," or gospel, with a statement so brief as to be regarded by many Bible students as Mark's own title or superscription of his story of Christ's life: "The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God."

The Roots of the Gospel.

While we find the fruits of the gospel in the New Testament, we must look for the root of the gospel in the Old Testament. So Mark goes back to the Old Testament prophets Isaiah and Malachi to show how that all that preceded Christ was but prophetic and preparatory to his coming and ministry: "Even as it is written in Isaiah the prophet, Behold I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way: the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Make ye ready the way of the Lord, make His paths straight." This bold and rugged preacher's credentials were written on no diploma of the schools of his day, but rather in the writings of the ancient prophets of his nation. His was a ministry of utter self-denial as he ministered, "clothed with camel's hair, and a leathern girdle around his loins, and did eat locusts and wild honey." Certainly, no one could accuse him of preaching for what he got out of it!

"Behold the Lamb of God."

John the Baptist directed attention from himself to Christ, of whom he said, "He must increase, but I must decrease." He claimed to be nothing but a "voice of one crying in the wilderness." He felt himself unworthy to render to Christ the most menial service to the King whose coming he heralded: "There cometh after me he that is mightier than I, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose." It was John's high privilege to be the last of the prophets and the first of the evangelists, to usher the Christ into his ministry and announce him as "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." He disuaded his own disciples from following him, and pointed them to Christ as their Master. "I baptize you in water; but he shall baptize you in the Holy Spirit," he said John's ministry was preliminary, partial and preparatory, while Christ's ministry was to be permanent, perfect and propitiatory.

Jesus' Baptism and Testing.

It was John's high privilege to minister at the ordination of the Messiah of prophecy when he baptized our Lord Jesus Christ, not for forgiveness of sin, but for identification with our sin: "It came to pass in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized of John in the Jordan. And straightway coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens rent asunder, and the Spirit as a dove descending upon him: and a voice came out of the heavens, Thou art my beloved Son, in thee I am well pleased." Thus God attested the perfection of Christ and his fitness to be the world's Redeemer. But Christ's perfection must first be proved by being "tempted in all points like we are," and so, for forty days Satan tempted him, but with no success, for Christ was "holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners," and thus the perfect "Lamb of God." This is the gospel for "good news" of God for sinful souls of all ages.

Simpson 'Grads' To Learn About Senior High Life

A peak into their future school life will be given the 135 members of the 9-A class at John Simpson Junior high school, Monday when they will spend the day at the Senior high school as guests of the 12-A and 12-B classes.

The junior high students, who make up the class that will be promoted to the senior high school Jan. 28, will be assigned to a member of the senior class. They will report to the senior students home room Monday morning instead of their own room at John Simpson.

The Simpson pupils will be assigned to seniors taking the same course they will enroll in when they enter senior high in four weeks. Herman D. Bishop, assistant principal at the senior high school said.

The 9-A students will go through their guests' regular classroom schedule until after the noon hour. The group will then go to the auditorium where they will register for their high school courses.

TALKS AGAIN

PORT AUSTIN, Mich.—(U.P.)—For 20 years Lieut. Col. Charles Pierson had been speechless. A machine gun bullet wound in the throat during the World war took away his voice.

Early this week Pierson coughed, dislodging a blood clot. Within a few hours he discovered he could whisper. Today his voice was becoming stronger, and physicians believed normal speech will return to him within a few months.

Attorney Challenges Senate's 'Legal Graft' Inquiry

WITNESS SAYS LAWYER GIVEN 'COMMISSIONS'

Hardware Dealer Tells of Fees Paid to Get Orders For State Supplies.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Finance Director M. Ray Allison requested the senate's graft-hunting committee today to investigate immediately Sen. H. D. Byrne, (D., Portage) who, he said, was on the payroll of Kent State university at $300 a month. Byrne, a member of the "hatchet men" bloc is paid $2,000 a year as a legislator.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The first witness who has refused outright to answer questions challenged today the legal right of a special senate committee to proceed further in its investigation of alleged "legal graft" in the state government

William J. Goggin, Columbus attorney, base his refusal on the belief "that this committee is without lawful power or jurisdiction to conduct any inqury, and further that the questions propounded are an invasion of my strictly personal issues."

The questions dealt with commissions or fees received from clients doing business with the state.

Business Dropped.

A few minutes later H. F. Steele, a Columbus Hardware salesman, told the committee that his business with the state highway department, which once totaled $50,000 annuall, dropped to $8,000 after he quit paying "commissions" to Goggin.

Apparently accepting Goggin's challenge of the committee's authority, James Metzenbaum, committee counsel, declared the body would "take steps to meet" the attorney's refusal to testify.

Goggin, while unwilling to disclose his relations with clients, told the committee "I have received nothing from anyone other than as their attorney."

In conversation with newspaper men he disclaimed any connection with the Democratic state organization, which has headquarters in the building which houses Goggin's office.

Steele, who said he had been doing business with the state government 15 to 20 years, testified Goggin approached him in 1935 and offered, for a commission of 7½ per cent, to increase his sales to the state.

Probers Shown Checks.

Four checks, endorsed by Goggin, were offered as evidence to support Steele's testimony that he paid Goggin more than $700, representing what he termed the attorney's commission of three per cent on sales to the state.

The hardware salesman testified that in the fall of 1936 he refused to pay Goggin any more money, and that the lawyer stormed.

Steele said further that Goggin told him "others kicked in more than I did" and related that an oil company paid $900 and that he had a check from a distillery. Relations with the attorney were severed, Steele testified, after he rejected Goggin's demand for a campaign contribution shortly before the election of November, 1936.

Donald Meder's reputation as the youngest sports figure in Mansfield is gradually becoming state-wide. Only four years of age, Don, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Meder, Davis road, is the youngest bowler in the city, if not in the state. Using a specially-built ball, he has made several out-of-town performances with Mansfield teams, rolling exhibitions before the matches. His first distant appearance as an exhibitionist will be made in the near future when he goes to Steubenville to display his wares.

For eight years, C. N. Shultz has been a member of city council from the Second ward, but it was not until this week that his name appeared last on the roll call slips that the clerk of council checks on each vote. Councilmen are listed in alphabetical order, and so for the next two years, Shultz's name will be the last called. Incidentally the printer erred in printing the slips and Shultz's name appears as Schultz.

J. H "Jack" Glasener, who hasn't missed a Kiwanis club meeting since 1925, started the new year off right by being on hand for the club's first 1938 session yesterday. Glasener, a Mansfield contractor, joined the club in 1924 and his attendance record was under way the next year Carlton Fernyak, secretary of the club, has a record that rivals Glasener's. He hasn't missed a weekly Kiwanis session since 1928. Both men have kept their records intact by attending Kiwanis meetings in other cities in the nation when they happened to be away from Mansfield.

Amateur weather prophets are not being fooled by present conditions, take it from Ralph E. Baer of the Farmers Savings & Trust company. Not a weather prophet himself, Baer is an attentive listener to all the prophets, and he says that most of the signs point to a late winter. The latest weather indicators to come to Baer's attention are caterpillars. A friend explained to him the other day that when caterpillars are black on both ends, as they were last summer, the winter will start out cold and finish that way after a mild period.

The election of Paul Smith as "principal" of Senior high school for the student day observance next Thursday is just another office for him to add to an already impressive list. Paul is also president of the senior class, served as service-safety director five years ago when Boy Scouts "ran the city" for a day, and is president of the high school band.

DEFIES WARNING

Akron Judge Arms Self After Gambling War Threats.

AKRON — (AP) — Warned in a mysterious telephone call to "lay off the gamblers," Municipal Judge C. V. D. Emmons armed himself with a revolver today and announced he would continue to push the campaign which has led so far to an eviction order against one gambling place.

The implied threat against Judge Emmons, leader of the current anti-gambling drive here was disclosed when he went to police headquarters with a request that a close watch on his home be maintained.

"You'd better lay off the gamblers—they're after you," Emmons was warned last night in a phone call from a man who refused to identify himself. "Your home is being watched. You're being followed, and they're either going to frame you or else"

ITALY EXPANDS NAVAL FORCES

Begins Construction of Two More Battleships, New Subs and 12 Destroyers.

ROME—(AP)—Italy is to begin immediate construction of two more 35,000 ton battleships, 12 destroyers and an important number of submarines, it was announced officially today.

Determined to make his fleet top-notch in an unsettled Europe, Premier Mussolini moved with characteristic swiftness in announcing the new battleships would be named Roma and Impero and would be built in Trieste and Genoa

The specified number of submarines was not mentioned, the communique saying that the total would be "important."

With the announced increase Italy would have four first class fighting vessels of 35,000 tons and 56 destroyers. This would give her preponderance over France in heavy fighting ships, and greatly enhance her strength in the Mediterranean.

France now has but two 35,000 ton battleships, both "replies" to Mussolini's first two ships of that size, the Vittoro Veneto and the Littorio, launched last summer.

With addition of the new submarines Italy will retain her position as the leading power in number of this type of fighting vessel with over 100 units.

When Mussolini's new program is completed Italy will have a navy of more than 500,000 tons, the largest in her history and close to the total tonnage of the French navy.

KIWANIANS GET REMINISCENT, EARLY BULLETINS BRING LAUGHS

Mansfield Kiwanians had a reminiscence session yesterday at their luncheon meeting when Secretary Carlton Fernyak brought out some of the early bulletins of the first years after the club was organized in 1920.

There was laughter when Fernyak said that Kiwanians always got things done when they put their shoulder to the wheel—and then read their resolution to work for a new passenger station in Mansfield The resolution was passed Dec. 8, 1921

He recalled the club's interest in cleaning up Mansfield sidewalks One bulletin on the subject waxed eloquent with "Why should men whose yards are the picture of neatness allow their city streets to look like the Mendota street dump?" There were other urgings to do something about it—and the final one on the subject which informed members that a hard rain had done the work

There were references to "treats" from E O. Townsend, sometimes cigars for all members at the luncheon, and sometimes fruit from his Florida home.

On Nov. 3, 1921 the club had as their speaker Dale Carnegie, a Y M. C. A. worker from New York City He was little known then, but since making a fortune with his recent book "How to Make Friends and Influence People," he is one of the most sought after speakers in America.

In those years the Kiwanians had their own baseball team and played the Steel Mill team, the Rotarians and the University club teams at Davey field.

People were distressed about government spending back in 1921 for City Solicitor Van C. Cook talked to Kiwanians on the subject of taxation and asked them "If your business was taking in one dollar and spending ten what would you do?"

Charles Conklin, newly elected president, and other officers were installed at yesterday's meeting Conklin succeeds Dwight Smith. Townsend in behalf of the club presented Smith with a past president's button and a golf bag

Fernyak began his 11th consecutive term as secretary of the club

PAIR ACTED IN SELF-DEFENSE, VERDICT SAYS

Murder on High Seas Charge Dropped as Probe Ends In Weird Ocean Drama.

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—Back to sea undaunted, will go Robert Horne and George Spernack, young deckhands of the yacht Atje, who threw the mutinous Jack Morgan to the sharks, and were exonerated of the killing yesterday.

The federal grand jury returned a "no bill," deciding that the two seamen acted in self-defense in disposing of Morgan, who shot Dwight Faulding, the Atje's skipper, and headed the boat toward the South Seas for a planned career of piracy.

Complaints charging murder on the high seas on which the men had been held while the government went through its technical formalities, were dismissed in Federal Judge Harry A. Hollzer's court. A deputy marshal went to the county jail and released the prisoners

"We're going back to sea—but not on a private yacht, it's too dangerous." Horne and Spernack chorused when they departed.

Hired For Cruise.

The two amateur seamen, Horne a photographer by profession, and Spernack a friend of the slain skipper had been hired to help sail the trim little Aafje on a two-day cruise around nearby Santa Catalina island. Morgan, who chartered the vessel supposedly for such a trip, killed the skipper a few hours out, imprisoned the passengers and took command. He sailed south to satisfy a mad dream of founding an "island paradise" and equipping it by looting other boots that he met.

Three women were aboard: Morgan's 17-year-old common-law wife, Lillian; Elsie Berdan, pretty 22-year-old nurse for Mrs. Morgan, who is an expectant mother; and Mrs Gertrude Turner, fiancee of Faulding Morgan threatened and abused all of them, and was especially harsh to Mrs. Turner's 8-year-old son, Bobby. Miss Berdan said he took her to a cabin, forced her to disrobe partially, and tried to assault her but she fought him off.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

THERE is general agreement that the undistributed profits tax forced through by the president last year has been—to put it mildly—disappointing. It not only failed, in the most auspicious period for such a tax, to produce anything like the revenue expected, but it prevented the expansion of industry and weakened the business structure—particularly of the smaller corporations.

FROM THIS view there is almost no dissent. Even the treasury now looks with disfavor upon its own child and it has been repudiated by nearly everybody who was for it a year ago. Under such circumstances, there ought to be little difficulty in wiping it off the books early in this session of congress. Yet, it is not at all certain that that will be done It will be changed—yes; but in what way and to what extent depends upon whether congress follows the president or the president follows congress.

UNTIL 1935, Mr. Roosevelt had so completely dominated the legislative branch that it appeared to have lost all initiative. But in the last two sessions it ceased to submit and it would be altogether surprising if in this matter of taxation independence were really declared. For example, there are three things that can be done about the surplus tax law. It can be moderately modified or it can be drastically modified or it can be repealed.

So far as the president is concerned, although he knows the law has not worked and has been strongly urged to take the lead in asking for its repeal, he is not prepared to go farther than moderate modification. To do more it is pointed out, would amount to admitting that without really understanding what it meant and in complete disregard of advice from his friends, he compelled congress to enact a law that contributed largely to the present business recession and is today recognized as unsound and unworkable.

THAT IS THE KIND of admission Mr. Roosevelt cannot bring himself to make and his intimates say it is no use expecting it. Accordingly, word has gone out from the White House that the "principle" of the surplus tax must be returned and the modification shall afford relief only to the "little fellow" This, of course, is a face-saving proposition which evades the facts and will not restore the much to be desired business confidence Yet, it is as far as Mr. Roosevelt willingly will go. If there is either greater revision or repeal, it will come in spite of the president and not because of the president It will come because congress, responding to public pressure, goes beyond the presidential recommendation if any is made. The fact is that left to itself, congress would repeal the law in short order—and everybody knows it.

FOR ONE THING, it was the president's mistake—not that of congress, and congress can repeal without stultification or embarrassment. For another, congress—or at least a majority of congress—is convinced that this is an unpopular law which stands in the way of business recovery. Congress would have taken a step toward repeal in the recent special session, but was definitely prevented by administration leaders acting under White House orders

THE QUESTION today is whether the Roosevelt influence will be sufficient again to stop the complete elimination of an act which economists and experts with singular unanimity agree was a blunder. In the house, where the bill must originate, it probably can be done easily. Mr. Vinson, chairman of the subcommittee of the ways and means committee, has been named by the president as a federal judge and is expected to take the presidential view in framing the modification However, even so, it will be fear of administration reprisals in an election year that will hold members in line for the principle of this law.

THE REAL hope is in the senate, where sentiment is not only more pronounced, but where Senator Pat Harrison is chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Harrison has already publicly expressed himself in strong disapproval of the undistributed profits tax. The new tax bill, as it is finally passed, is more likely to be in the form desired by him than any other. The gist of the situation is that congress is more desirous of relieving business of what it is agreed are crippling taxes than is the president. Let alone, it would repeal the surplus tax, and greatly modify the capital gains tax. The president, if he can help, will not let congress go that far—chiefly because it is explained by those who act for him, it would "look like a surrender"—and so be construed by his opponents.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—They are filming three endings to "The Baroness and the Butler," the William Powell-Annabella film.

They aren't concerned with how the story ends—whether the heroine shall marry the hero or shall kill herself or take vanilla. That's all settled. What bothers them is whether Annabella should spill coffee on Powell, and if so, just how much coffee shall she spill.

It's the "tag" that counts—the final scene. Producers and writers huddle fiercely on that particular portion of a production, often take straw votes among themselves and then studio workers to decide on it

The fade-out invariably leaves a strong impression on the fans. If it's a good impression, they're supposed to be more prone to tell their friends about the picture. Often—now think back—a good "tag" will give you a happy impression of a picture that wasn't nearly as good as you let the theater thinking it was

Without going into exhaustive research on the matter, the "tag" that strikes me as most nearly perfect for the film it concluded was that on "It Happened One Night"—a scene in which neither Claudette Colbert nor Clark Gable appeared. Tritest of tags, of course, is the fade-out kiss, but variations on this, smartened and brightened, never fail to win approval.

The practice of filming two story endings to a picture is still common. The idea behind it is that a city audience can "take" an unhappy ending, whereas the small town and rural fan wants his screen life sugared. In "The Wedding Night" Anna Sten died for the classes, but lived and loved for the masses. Showing how much difference it sometimes makes, the picture itself died for both.

Belated success story. A year ago he was an extra, working around the lots and eager for any bone of encouragement. The bones were few, and he went back home—to a ranch near Faith, S. D.—determined to forget about Hollywood and the disillusion it brought.

Not long ago, his pastoral life was interrupted by a telegram. From Columbia Pictures. The studio needed him for a major role in "Land Rush." He came back—to the dignity of success and adulation, his faith restored.

Tuffy, as well-trained a cowdog as you're likely to meet, is a success. His owner, Gerhard Orvendahl, is content.

Director Kurt Neumann hired a boat the other day, but you won't see it in Joe E. Brown's new film, "Wide Open Faces."

Neumann was shooting scenes at a drawbridge down by the San Pedro waterfront. The action demanded that the bridge be hoisted at periodic intervals, and the director tried to make a deal with the bridge tender to have the span raised on cue.

This the tender refused, on the ground that it was against the law to raise the bridge except to permit a boat to pass beneath. So . . .

Attorney Challenges Senate's 'Legal Graft' Inquiry

WITNESS SAYS LAWYER GIVEN 'COMMISSIONS'

Hardware Dealer Tells of Fees Paid to Get Orders For State Supplies.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Finance Director M. Ray Allison requested the senate's graft-hunting committee today to investigate immediately Sen. H. D. Byrne, (D., Portage) who, he said, was on the payroll of Kent State university at $300 a month. Byrne, a member of the "hatchet men" bloc is paid $2,000 a year as a legislator.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The first witness who has refused outright to answer questions challenged today the legal right of a special senate committee to proceed further in its investigation of alleged "legal graft" in the state government

William J. Goggin, Columbus attorney, base his refusal on the belief "that this committee is without lawful power or jurisdiction to conduct any inquiry, and further that the questions propounded are an invasion of my strictly personal issues."

The questions dealt with commissions or fees received from clients doing business with the state.

Business Dropped.

A few minutes later H. F. Steele, a Columbus Hardware salesman, told the committee that his business with the state highway department, which once totaled $50,000 annuall, dropped to $8,000 after he quit paying "commissions" to Goggin.

Apparently accepting Goggin's challenge of the committee's authority, James Metzenbaum, committee counsel, declared the body would "take steps to meet" the attorney's refusal to testify.

Goggin, while unwilling to disclose his relations with clients, told the committee "I have received nothing from anyone other than as their attorney."

In conversation with newspaper men he disclaimed any connection with the Democratic state organization, which has headquarters in the building which houses Goggin's office.

Steele, who said he had been doing business with the state government 15 to 20 years, testified Goggin approached him in 1935 and offered, for a commission of 7½ per cent, to increase his sales to the state.

Probers Shown Checks.

Four checks, endorsed by Goggin, were offered as evidence to support Steele's testimony that he paid Goggin more than $700, representing what he termed the attorney's commission of three per cent on sales to the state.

The hardware salesman testified that in the fall of 1936 he refused to pay Goggin any more money, and that the lawyer stormed.

Steele said further that Goggin told him "others kicked in more than I did" and related that an oil company paid $900 and that he had a check from a distillery. Relations with the attorney were severed, Steele testified, after he rejected Goggin's demand for a campaign contribution shortly before the election of November, 1936.

Boy Scouts To Take Over Reins Of City For Day

Mansfield Boy Scouts will take over the reins of Mansfield's city government for one day during the week of Feb. 6 as a part of their celebration of National Boy Scout week, Floyd Dent, area scout executive, announced today.

Announcement of this event was made to scoutmasters and commissioners at a meeting last night at scout headquarters in the Elks' building, during which the 1938 scout program was approved.

This one day, scouts will act as mayor, service-safety director, police chief, fire chief, and other city officials. Scouts to fill these positions will be chosen at a special election. Arrangements for the day are in charge of a committee made up of J. R. Turner, Carl Stough, Tom Metcalf, Earl Mases, and Jack Augustine. The event has the approval of Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Dent said.

Other events during scout week include special meetings of all troops, and the annual Boy Scout church service to be held Sunday, Feb. 13, at the First Lutheran church. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer will preach the sermon.

Donald Meder's reputation as the youngest sports figure in Mansfield is gradually becoming state-wide. Only four years of age, Don, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Meder, Davis road, is the youngest bowler in the city, if not in the state. Using a specially-built ball, he has made several out-of-town performances with Mansfield teams, rolling exhibitions before the matches. His first distant appearance as an exhibitionist will be made in the near future when he goes to Steubenville to display his wares.

Incidentally the printer erred in printing the slips and Shultz's name appears as Schultz.

J. H. "Jack" Glasener, who hasn't missed a Kiwanis club meeting since 1925, started the new year off right by being on hand for the club's first 1938 session yesterday. Glasener, a Mansfield contractor, joined the club in 1924 and his attendance record was under way the next year. Carlton Fernyak, secretary of the club, has a record that rivals Glasener's. He hasn't missed a weekly Kiwanis session since 1928. Both men have kept their records intact by attending Kiwanis meetings in other cities in the nation when they happened to be away from Mansfield.

Not a weather prophet himself, Baer is an attentive listener to all the prophets, and he says that most of the signs point to a late winter. The latest weather indicators to come to Baer's attention are caterpillars. A friend explained to him the other day that when caterpillars are black on both ends, as they were last summer, the winter will start out cold and finish that way after a mild period.

DEFIES WARNING

Akron Judge Arms Self After Gambling War Threats.

AKRON — (AP) — Warned in a mysterious telephone call to "lay off the gamblers," Municipal Judge C. V. D. Emmons armed himself with a revolver today and announced he would continue to push the campaign which has led so far to an eviction order against one gambling place.

The implied threat against Judge Emmons, leader of the current anti-gambling drive here was disclosed when he went to police headquarters with a request that a close watch on his home be maintained.

"You'd better lay off the gamblers—they're after you," Emmons was warned last night in a phone call from a man who refused to identify himself. "Your home is being watched. You're being followed, and they're either going to frame you or else."

ITALY EXPANDS NAVAL FORCES

Begins Construction of Two More Battleships, New Subs and 12 Destroyers.

ROME—(AP)—Italy is to begin immediate construction of two more 35,000 ton battleships, 12 destroyers and an important number of submarines, it was announced officially today.

Determined to make his fleet top-notch in an unsettled Europe, Premier Mussolini moved with characteristic swiftness in announcing the new battleships would be named Roma and Impero and would be built in Trieste and Genoa.

The specified number of submarines was not mentioned, the communique saying that the total would be "important."

With the announced increase, Italy would have four first class fighting vessels of 35,000 tons and 56 destroyers. This would give her preponderance over France in heavy fighting ships, and greatly enhance her strength in the Mediterranean.

France now has but two 35,000 ton battleships, both "replies" to Mussolini's first two ships of that size, the Vittoro Veneto and the Littorio, launched last summer.

With addition of the new submarines Italy will retain her position as the leading power in number of this type of fighting vessel with over 100 units.

When Mussolini's new program is completed Italy will have a navy of more than 500,000 tons, the largest in her history and close to the total tonnage of the French navy.

KIWANIANS GET REMINISCENT, EARLY BULLETINS BRING LAUGHS

Mansfield Kiwanians had a reminiscence session yesterday at their luncheon meeting when Secretary Carlton Fernyak brought out some of the early bulletins of the first years after the club was organized in 1920.

There was laughter when Fernyak said that Kiwanians always got things done when they put their shoulder to the wheel—and then read their resolution to work for a new passenger station in Mansfield. The resolution was passed Dec. 8, 1921.

He recalled the club's interest in cleaning up Mansfield sidewalks One bulletin on the subject waxed eloquent with "Why should men whose yards are the picture of neatness allow their city streets to look like the Mendota street dump?" There were other urgings to do something about it—and the final one on the subject which informed members that a hard rain had done the work.

There were references to "treats" from E O. Townsend, sometimes cigars for all members at the luncheon, and sometimes fruit from his Florida home.

On Nov. 3, 1921 the club had as their speaker Dale Carnegie, a Y M C A worker from New York City He was little known then, but since making a fortune with his recent book "How to Make Friends and Influence People," he is one of the most sought after speakers in America.

In those years the Kiwanians had their own baseball team and played the Steel Mill team, the Rotarians and the University club teams at Davey field.

People were distressed about government spending back in 1921 for City Solicitor Van C Cook talked to Kiwanians on the subject of taxation and asked them "If your business was taking in one dollar and spending ten, what would you do?"

Charles Conklin, newly elected president, and other officers were installed at yesterday's meeting Conklin succeeds Dwight Smith. Townsend in behalf of the club presented Smith with a past president's button and a golf bag.

Fernyak began his 11th consecutive term as secretary of the club

PAIR ACTED IN SELF-DEFENSE, VERDICT SAYS

Murder on High Seas Charge Dropped as Probe Ends In Weird Ocean Drama.

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—Back to sea undaunted, will go Robert Horne and George Spernack, young deckhands of the yacht Afje, who threw the mutinous Jack Morgan to the sharks, and were exonerated of the killing yesterday.

The federal grand jury returned a "no bill," deciding that the two seamen acted in self-defense in disposing of Morgan, who shot Dwight Faulding, the Afje's skipper, and headed the boat toward the South Seas for a planned career of piracy.

Complaints charging murder on the high seas, on which the men had been held while the government went through its technical formalities, were dismissed in Federal Judge Harry A Hollzer's court. A deputy marshal went to the county jail and released the prisoners

"We're going back to sea—but not on a private yacht, it's too dangerous," Horne and Spernack chorused when they departed.

Hired For Cruise.

The two amateur seamen, Horne a photographer by profession, and Spernack a friend of the slain skipper, had been hired to help sail the trim little Aafje on a two-day cruise around nearby Santa Catalina island Morgan, who chartered the vessel supposedly for such a trip, killed the skipper a few hours out, imprisoned the passengers and took command. He sailed south to satisfy a mad dream of founding an "island paradise" and equipping it by looting other boats that he met.

Three women were aboard: Morgan's 17-year-old common-law wife, Lillian; Elsie Berdan, pretty 22-year-old nurse for Mrs. Morgan, who is an expectant mother; and Mrs. Gertrude Turner, fiancee of Faulding. Morgan threatened and abused all of them, and was especially harsh to Mrs. Turner's 8-year-old son, Bobby. Miss Berdan said he took her to a cabin, forced her to disrobe partially, and tried to assault her but she fought him off

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

THERE is general agreement that the undistributed profits tax forced through by the president last year has been—to put it mildly—disappointing. It not only failed, in the most auspicious period for such a tax, to produce anything like the revenue expected, but it prevented the expansion of industry and weakened the business structure—particularly of the smaller corporations.

FROM THIS view there is almost no dissent. Even the treasury now looks with disfavor upon its own child and it has been repudiated by nearly everybody who was for it a year ago. Under such circumstances, there ought to be little difficulty in wiping it off the books early in this session of congress. Yet, it is not at all certain that that will be done. It will be changed—yes; but in what way and to what extent depends upon whether congress follows the president or the president follows congress.

UNTIL 1935, Mr. Roosevelt had so completely dominated the legislative branch that it appeared to have lost all initiative. But in the last two sessions it ceased to submit and it would be altogether surprising if in this matter of taxation independence were really declared. For example, there are three things that can be done about the surplus tax law. It can be moderately modified or it can be drastically modified or it can be repealed.

So far as the president is concerned, although he knows the law has not worked and has been strongly urged to take the lead in asking for its repeal, he is not prepared to go farther than moderate modification. To do more it is pointed out, would amount to admitting that without really understanding what it meant and in complete disregard of advice from his friends, he compelled congress to enact a law that contributed largely to the present business recession and is today recognized as unsound and unworkable.

THAT IS THE KIND of admission Mr. Roosevelt cannot bring himself to make and his intimates say it is no use expecting it. Accordingly, word has gone out from the White House that the "principle" of the surplus tax must be returned and the modification shall afford relief only to the "little fellow." This, of course, is a face-saving proposition which evades the facts and will not restore the much to be desired business confidence. Yet, it is as far as Mr. Roosevelt willingly will go. If there is either greater revision or repeal, it will come in spite of the president and not because of the president It will come because congress, responding to public pressure, goes beyond the presidential recommendation if any is made. The fact is that left to itself, congress would repeal the law in short order—and everybody knows it.

FOR ONE THING, it was the president's mistake—not that of congress, and congress can repeal without stultification or embarrassment. For another, congress—or at least a majority of congress—is convinced that this is an unpopular law which stands in the way of business recovery. Congress would have taken a step toward repeal in the recent special session, but was definitely prevented by administration leaders acting under White House orders.

THE QUESTION today is whether the Roosevelt influence will be sufficient again to stop the complete elimination of an act which economists and experts with singular unanimity agree was a blunder. In the house, where the bill must originate, it probably can be done easily. Mr. Vinson, chairman of the subcommittee of the ways and means committee, has been named by the president as a federal judge and is expected to take the presidential view in framing the modification. However, even so, it will be fear of administration reprisals in an election year that will hold members in line for the principle of this law.

THE REAL hope is in the senate, where sentiment is not only more pronounced, but where Senator Pat Harrison is chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Harrison has already publicly expressed himself in strong disapproval of the undistributed profits tax. The new tax bill, as it is finally passed, is more likely to be in the form desired by him than any other. The gist of the situation is that congress is more desirous of relieving business of what it is agreed are crippling taxes than is the president. Let alone, it would repeal the surplus tax, and greatly modify the capital gains tax. The president, if he can help, will not let congress go that far—chiefly because it is explained by those who act for him, it would "look like a surrender"—and so be construed by his opponents.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—They are filming three endings to "The Baroness and the Butler," the William Powell-Annabella film.

They aren't concerned with how the story ends—whether the heroine shall marry the hero or shall kill herself or take vanilla. That's all settled. What bothers them is whether Annabella should spill coffee on Powell, and if so, just how much coffee shall she spill.

It's the "tag" that counts—the final scene. Producers and writers huddle fiercely on that particular portion of a production, often take straw votes among themselves and their studio workers to decide on it.

Without going into exhaustive research on the matter, the "tag" that strikes me as most nearly perfect for the film it concluded was that on "It Happened One Night"—a scene in which neither Claudette Colbert nor Clark Gable appeared. Tiniest of tags, of course, is the fade-out kiss, but variations on this, smartened and brightened, never fail to win approval.

The practice of filming two story endings to a picture is still common. The idea behind it is that a city audience can "take" an unhappy ending, whereas the small town and rural fan wants his screen life sugared. In "The Wedding Night" Anna Sten died for the classes, but lived and loved for the masses. Showing how much difference it sometimes makes, the picture itself died for both.

Belated success story. A year ago he was an extra, working around the lots and eager for any bone of encouragement. The bones were few, and he went back home—to a ranch near Faith, S. D.—determined to forget about Hollywood and the disillusion it brought.

Not long ago, his pastoral life was interrupted by a telegram, From Columbia Pictures. The studio needed him for a major role in "Land Rush." He came back—to the dignity of success and adulation, his faith restored.

Tuffy, as well-trained a cow-dog as you're likely to meet, is a success. His owner, Gerhard Orvendahl, is content.

Director Kurt Neumann hired a boat the other day, but you won't see it in Joe E. Brown's new film, "Wide Open Faces."

Neumann was shooting scenes at a drawbridge down by the San Pedro waterfront. The action demanded that the bridge be hoisted at periodic intervals, and the director tried to make a deal with the bridge tender to have the span raised on cue.

This the tender refused, on the ground that it was against the law to raise the bridge except to permit a boat to pass beneath. So . . .

Marriage Faced By Problem

By VIRGINIA LEE

I CONFESS I am completely puzzled by the problems of some of my young friends.

A while ago a girl I have known since she was a small child came to see me, telling me of her engagement. The only blemish on her happiness is that fact that with the father dead, and her fiance the oldest in a family of children, he has been practically supporting his mother and the younger ones, and does not know how he can withdraw his financial help to make a home of his own.

The youngest of the family now is old enough to graduate from high school and the others are working The mother is quite frail and so could hardly support herself. The younger ones should, it seems, take their turn at supporting the mother, and release the older brother, but they also are engaged and want to wed, and that leaves the youngest, who must find work soon. And the youngest so often gets "stuck" with the parents' support—which hardly seems fair.

I don't know how this young couple will work things out. The logical thing would be either for the two to marry and go to live with the mother and the youngest, leaving the others free. Or for them to wed and set up their own home, leaving the others to do likewise, and then all help when the youngest—who is a girl—wants to marry.

The young couple hasn't asked my advice, but I have been trying to figure a way out in my own mind.

WONDERING DOT'S problem is that her boy friend works for his dad and never gets a salary but just "charges" what he needs. She wonders how it will work out, providing they marry.

I don't believe it would be a very satisfactory arrangement. Even a small salary would be better. If you don't have some regular income, you will always be subject to criticism from the in-laws that you are extravagant, or something. I am afraid. A salary or some understanding of the amount you are allowed to draw is necessary, it seems to me, to plan an intelligent budget. Money is a serious source of discord in any family, and unless your fiance's people are unusually intelligent and broadminded, it may create a very unhappy problem.

If both families—you and he, and his parents—are very tolerant and co-operative, it might work out—but I have my doubts of the arrangement. It leaves too much room for argument.

DARK RICH FRUIT CAKE — One-half package raisins, two packages pasteurized dates, two two three-ounce packages sliced orange peel, one three-ounce package sliced lemon peel, one three-ounce package cherries, one three-ounce package sliced pineapple, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon allspice, one-fourth teaspoon cloves, one-half cup butter, one cup brown sugar, three eggs, one-half cup strong coffee infusion, one-half cup molasses. Cut dates in pieces; halve the cherries. Put all fruit and peels in bowl. Sift flour, salt, soda and spices over fruit and mix; cream butter; stir in sugar gradually, then beaten eggs. Add flour and fruit alternately with coffee and molasses. Pour batter into large paper-lined loaf pan; bake in slow oven (275 degrees F.) three hours. This makes four pounds.

When you wish to make gravy or soup with the water in which meat has been cooked, wring a cloth out in cold water and strain the liquor through it. No grease will go through.

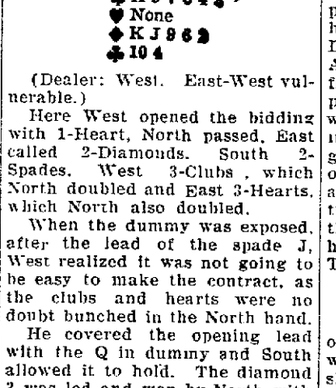
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE DOLEFUL

YOU ARE not always in as bad shape as you may think, when an opponent has doubled your contract. By playing for the breaks in the location of different cards and endeavoring to get the stronger defender into the lead at the close of the hand, you may save a trick here and there until you eventually emerge with a doleful looking contract successfully made It pays to stick to your knitting even when the cause seems almost hopeless.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

Here West opened the bidding with 1-Heart, North passed, East called 2-Diamonds. South 2-Spades. West 3-Clubs , which North doubled and East 3-Hearts, which North also doubled.

When the dummy was exposed, after the lead of the spade J, West realized it was not going to be easy to make the contract, as the clubs and hearts were no doubt bunched in the North hand.

He covered the opening lead with the Q in dummy and South allowed it to hold. The diamond 3 was led and won by North with the A. A second spade was returned, covered by the 8, 9 and A. The heart 3 was the next lead, on which North played the 2 and dummy the 7. When South showed a void, the declarer started on clubs, by cashing the K and A and ruffing one round. A diamond was trumped by the West hand and another club ruffed. The spade 10 was led from dummy, covered by South's K, and West tossed the club J, knowing North would have to win. He did, and had to lead from his A-Q-10, giving West the trick he needed.

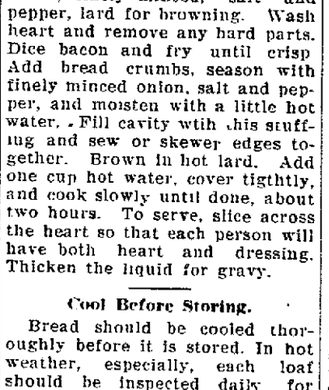
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer West. North-South vulnerable).

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

Today's Recipes.

Stuffed Beef Heart—One beef heart, three slices bacon, one cup fine bread crumbs , one small onion, finely minced, salt and pepper, lard for browning. Wash heart and remove any hard parts. Dice bacon and fry until crisp Add bread crumbs, season with finely minced onion, salt and pepper, and moisten with a little hot water. Fill cavity with this stuffing and sew or skewer edges together. Brown in hot lard. Add one cup hot water, cover tightly, and cook slowly until done, about two hours. To serve, slice across the heart so that each person will have both heart and dressing. Thicken the liquid for gravy.

Cool Before Storing.

Bread should be cooled thoroughly before it is stored. In hot weather, especially, each loaf should be inspected daily for mold. The bread box also should be cleaned and aired frequently and kept in as cool a place as possible.

Salt should never be added to stews, soups and boiled meats until after they're cooked. If put in at first it toughens the fibre of the meat and takes out the juices

Riding Best Exercise For Back

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

HORSEBACK riding is an excellent sport because it can be approved with an eye to the figure as well as the fun. Riding benefits the figure by improving the posture and reducing overplump legs and hips.

The reducing powers of riding are easy to understand. Every muscle in the body is exercised, and the hips and legs are given vigorous massage. You can fairly feel any excess fat disappearing as slender, graceful muscles are developed to take its place.

What's more, unlike some of our active out-door sports, riding does not overdevelop the muscles, or harden them into unattractive bulges. It gives long, supple muscles, rather than unsightly bulges of brawn. And it trains the entire body to move gracefully, with an easy, natural motion.

Among other things, horseback riding will do much to improve your carriage. Those of you who are inclined to slump or let your heads hang low, could do nothing better than to go out for a daily trot. The act of posting, rhythmically moving your hips forward and up, then back and down, will encourage you immediately to straighten your shoulders and hold your head up high. Indeed, after you have ridden for a while, you'll find that an erect carriage is by far the most comfortable position for posting.

Remedies Swayback.

Besides promoting a straight back and high head carriage, the posting involved in horseback riding is excellent training for holding the hips properly in place. One of the most common feminine figure faults is the tendency to over-arch the back. This results in a sway-back appearance which is not only awkward to see, but also most unhealthful. Posting gives practice in the best cure for this, which is to thrust the hips forward so that they make a cradle for the torso, instead of following behind like an afterthought.

It isn't necessary, really, to be an expert horsewoman and a woman of wealth to enjoy riding or to take advantage of its figure benefits. There are a number of armories, indoor tracks, parks and like places where a girl may ride for an hour or so very inexpensively. And even if she doesn't know how to ride well, a slow walk alone will give her more gentle massage and exercise than she thinks.

However, with a few lessons, most women should be able to post to a trot and later to try a slow and regular canter. Take it easy in the beginning, of course. Ride for just a short time the first few times, in order to avoid the discomfort of any stiffness or sore muscles. In a short while your muscles will grow accustomed to the exercise, and you will begin to realize what perfectly grand fun this time-honored sport can be.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Jan. 8.

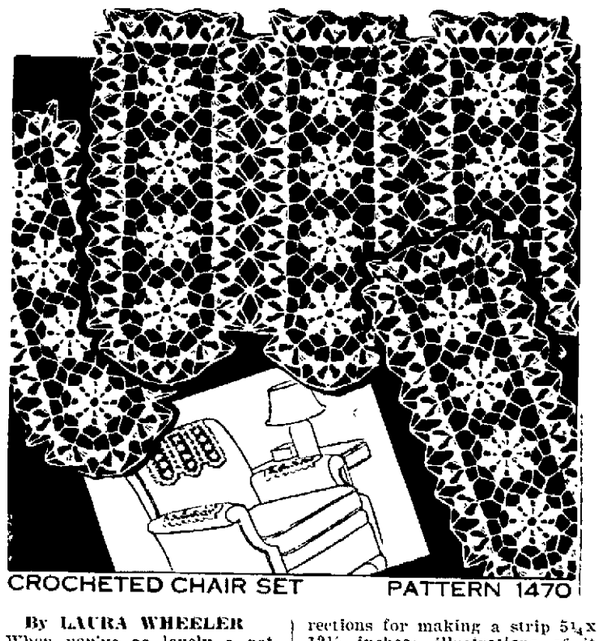
According to the sidereal operations for this day, old matters are likely to take precedence, with old associations, interests, investments and possessions calling for readjustments to new objectives.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to take old, lagging matters in hand and reorient them to new objectives of promise. Change may be advisable, but old associates and friends give good advice. In all, beware of duplicities and distortions in connection with papers. Sound programs should prosper.

A child born on this day should have sound talents and fair ambitions, which should thrive by its practical and well-organized ideas as well as through the co-operation of elders.

A small window may be made to look larger by setting the curtain rods beyond the casing on each side and using the draperies of a material heavy enough so that the casing will not be seen through the material.

CROCHETED LACE SET



CROCHETED CHAIR SET PATTERN 1470

By LAURA WHEELER

When you've as lovely a pattern as this why not make it do double duty and serve as "tidies" for both chairs and davenport? Both require the same quickly crocheted strips, flower-panelled. For a sofa, crochet and join five panels. For chair, three are adequate, with a panel for each arm. Make them of durable, everyday string. Pattern 1470 contains directions for making a strip 5¼ x 12½ inches; illustrations of it and of all stitches used; photograph of section of strip; material requirements; suggestions for a variety of uses.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin for this pattern to Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AT MY query concerning Jim, Katie eyed me as if she were speculating which relative had dropped me on my head when I was a baby.

"You tink I not know dot?" she asked. "He no kin hear nodings oop in our place. But vot matter mit him having cot on dot porch of ours outside keetchen? Nobody in house but shoost us. Eet no matter vere we sleep. Nobuddy goin' see us."

"You have planned everything very nicely, Katie," I said. "I am sure Madame Graham will be pleased."

Katie nodded.

"I know vun ting," she said sapiently. "Old vomans not be pleased eef me und dot Jeem go in your room sleep She is flopping round like hen mit head off making me put all your linen und blankets avay, und get eferyting from service closets."

She had so accurately described my mother-in-law's reaction to my plan that I almost choked on a laugh again. But with luck I managed to keep her from suspecting my mirth. I went back to my room and took up again the preparations for going to the city which had been interrupted by the problem presented by my maid and my mother-in-law.

Prepares for Trip.

I am rather methodical in my habits, and it did not take me long to sort out and pack the things I wished to take with me. My typewriter, my brief case, manuscript file, and a small box of books—professional equipment— and a few of the books I have read and re-read for years, these were soon piled ready for transfer to the car. My fitted dressing case was already in readiness, hat box held my hats and odds and ends of gloves, hand kerchiefs, stockings and vestees, while the rest of my clothing, including several dresses on hangars, were packed into the two pieces of smart luggage which were Dicky's Christmas gift to me, and which I prize very highly.

Mary's Things Next.

I put into a pile the things I wished Katie to launder and mend for me on the morrow and put aside in closet and bureau drawers every article of clothing from hat to shoes that I meant to wear into the city. Then, knowing that I had nothing further to do for myself, I went into Mary's room, not to pack for her—I would do that after Noel left—but to gather from her tumbled and jumbled belongings the gowns, lingerie and stockings that needed Katie's ministrations. Then, with a little trepidation, for I never know just how Dicky will react to an offer of help with his packing, but knowing that eventually I will have to do it all for him, I knocked on his door, wondering if he had come back from his errands.

I heard him spring to his feet at my knock, and then there came to my ears the unmistakable sound of papers being crushed together and thrust to one side. Next I heard the slam of his desk and the turning of the key in the lock. Not until then did he come to the door, and turning the key—he had locked it before he sat down to his desk —he stood smiling down at me in surprise, real or simulated, I could not determine which.

Has Wary Look?

"I thought you were going to be sensible and sleep until dinner time," he said, and I wondered if I imagined that his eyes had noted how mine had gone involuntarily to his locked desk. There was a distinctly wary look in them. That, I was positive, was not imagination.

"No such luck," I retored. "I had to reconcile Mother and Katie to the news that they and Jim were to be the sole inhabitants of the house until Katherine comes home."

"Poor Mrs. Fixit!" he said, smiling, and I forced back the resentment I always unreasonably feel at the familiar gibe. "The man who managed the Kilkenny cats—or didn't he?—had nothing on you. How did you come out?"

"Thanks to Katie, I came out very well, indeed," I said, and told him of the scheme Katie had evolved.

"Smart gal! our Katie," he said. "And now, with Mother and the maid settled, what's next on your mind? Me?"

Did I imagine it, or was he watching me narrowly, speculatively as he made the inquiry?

When May Cheese Be Served

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post. I was very careful to look in your new book to see what you said about serving cheeses at dinner. My wife has been looking down her nose at me for some time for insisting that we have cheese for those who like it as I do. Much to my genuine disappointment you mention cheese only in the disguise of straws or souffle suggested as an accompaniment of salad Does this mean that real honest to goodness cheese, as such, is tabu on a dinner menu? A souffle takes an expert, and anyway what about us cheese lovers? I can't imagine eating a sweet dessert instead of a sherry Stilton or a roquefort or camembert? If my wife notices your omission of cheese at dinner, why then she'll not only look down her nose at me, but it's O-U-T with the cheese.

Answer: I think you must have read no further than a formal dinner party list, in which cheese straws—cheese croquettes do belong. But I'm sure had you looked further you would have found plenty of descriptions of cheese. At any rate, you can rest assured that cheese is always the feature of the salad course; rarely if ever is salad served at informal dinners without it. At your own dinners (unless very formal) certainly serve Stilton cheese. Keep on doctoring it day after day and week after week the way my own father used to do in the days of my early childhood. And of course if you serve a Pont l' Eveque or a Camembert not only may you, but you must use a knife! Whether you have cheese made into a souffle or melted on crackers, or whether yo ueat it as it comes on crackers or on slices of apples or any other pet combination of your own is absolutely correct.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please explain about the hemming of a damask tablecloth? How wide should this hem be, and is the cloth turned all around, and is it ever hemstitched?

Answer: Damask cloth ought never to be hemstitched, nor are the selvage sides hemmed. The "raw" ends are hemmed with very close stitches. A tablecloth hem is about half an inch or at most five-eighths of an inch wide. The reason why stitches must be very fine and close is in order to hold the hem perfectly firm and straight after it's washed.

Melted butter is a good substitute for olive oil in salad dressing.

Household Hints

Menu Hint.

Broiled Hamburgers Onions
Baked Potatoes, Stewed Tomatoes
Pie Coffee

Pie is said to be men's favorite dessert. If women were not so often obsessed with the idea that it makes them fat, it would be theirs, too, and it doesn't always keep them from choosing it, as I observe from watching the lunches that are chosen in restaurants. At this time of year pie is often chosen for its food values. It is a "hearty" dessert that particularly appeals during the cold weather. The mince pie de luxe recipe is one to keep in mind at holiday time, and the molasses shoo-fly pie is delicious to one who has vivid recollections of the syrup pie of her childhood.

Today's Recipes.

MAKE MINCE PIE DE LUXE —During the holidays Virginia people enhance their mince pies this way: Make mince pie as ordinarily, but add half a cup pecans to the mincemeat before baking. When pie is ready to serve spread a small glass of jelly on the top crust and half a pint of whipped cream over that. This doesn't make the pie as rich as one would think.

MOLASSES SHOO-FLY PIE—Three-fourths cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon each, nutmeg, ginger and cloves, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup brown sugar, two tablespoons shortening, one and one-half teaspoons soda dissolved in three-fourths cup boiling water, one-half cup molasses, one egg yolk, well beaten, pastry. Mix flour with spices, salt and sugar. Rub in shortening. Add water to molasses and mix well. Stir this mixture into egg yolk. Line pie plate with pastry. Make alternate layers of flour mixture and molasses mixture. Top with flour mixture. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees F. for 10 minutes, reduce to moderate, 350 degrees F., and bake until filling is firm, about half an hour.

Oyster Fritters.

One cup milk, two eggs, well beaten, flour to make drop batter, salt, one teaspoon baking powder, one or two cups oysters with juice. Mix in usual way and drop into hot deep fat. These are nice to make out a meal with the remains of the Christmas turkey, or as an easy luncheon dish with cole slaw or cottage cheese salad and potato chips.

1937 YEAR OF LEGISLATION, REPORT SHOWS

Schettler, Ex-Solicitor, Set Record by Drawing Up 248 Ordinances, Resolutions.

Mansfield's already voluminous collection of ordinances and resolutions was increased further an unprecedented flood of legislation enacted by city council during the past year. The annual report of Atty. Herbert H. Schettler, former city solicitor who retired Dec. 31, showed today.

Schettler reported that he prepared 248 ordinances and resolutions during 1937 as compared to 160 during the previous year.

Along with this all-time high for drafting city legislation, Schettler issued 850 legal opinions to city officials and department heads during 1937 as compared to 683 in 1936. He also drew up 25 contracts, agreements and miscellaneous papers for the city during the year.

Court Cases Drop Off.

The other half of the solicitor's time was taken up in municipal court, preparing affidavits, advising and interviewing witnesses, prosecuting all contested cases and attending police court, his report said.

Schettler pointed out that the proportion of legislation and the rendering of opinions was particularly heavy during the past year.

While the preparation of legal forms reached an al-time high, criminal cases handled in the past year decreased approximately 15 per cent as compared with 1936. The report showed that 1,367 cases were disposed of as compared with 1,527 in 1936 when the greatest volume since the court was established 10 years ago was handled.

Of these, 799 were city cases, reflecting the decrease in the number of arrests in 1937 as compared with the preceding year's figure of 858. The balance of 568 were state cases.

LONDON—(AP)—Pat McDermott, once close to death from tuberculosis in Ohio penitentiary, was reported to be well on the road to recovery at the London prison farm.

McDermott convicted of being the trigger man in the slaying of Don R Mellett, vice-crusading editor of the Canton Daily News, July 16, 1926, was transferred to the farm April 19, 1936.

Prison farm attendants reported the "lifer" had gained many pounds and was in better physical condition.

JAP FISHERMEN ON WEST COAST PUZZLED BY BILL IN CONGRESS

FISH HARBOR, Los Angeles—(AP) — In this picturesque little cove of Los Angeles Harbor, the only question about the "Japanese fishing situation" is whether there is any "situation."

Fish Harbor is the home of most of the Japanese fishermen operating in this area. It is also the site of large American-owned canneries which depend almost entirely upon Japanese, Slavonian and Italian fishermen for their supplies, although Japanese are in the minority.

Japanese have been fishing out of here since World war days, when they were welcomed as aids to the West Coast fishing industry.

Recent seizures, however, of two Japanese-operated boats on illegal documentation charges and the perennial agitation over Japanese fishing off Alaska by boats from Japan — a different situation — have focused interest on California coastal operations. Another item is U. S. Sen. Copeland's pending bill designed to eliminate alien-operated fishing vessels from the coast trade.

About 350 purse seine fishing boats operate off California. Most of them are based at San Francisco, some at Monterey and about 70 here, of which only 10 are Japanese boats.

In seizing the boats Three Star and Nancy Hanks, the treasury department contended they were illegally documented to United States citizens, while the real owners, or part owners, are alien Japanese. Aliens are prohibited from owning U. S.-documented vessels, wholly or in part, although licensing and documentation are required now only for boats down to 20 tons.

The San Pedro Chamber of Commerce has asked U. S. Sen. William G. McAdoo to request the treasury department to refrain from further seizures until he can study the situation thoroughly.

Ohioan In Tax Suit, Contends Candy's a Food.

CUYAHOGA FALLS — (U.P.) — Ted Andrews, confectionery proprietor, said he was prepared to carry to the higher courts his contention that candy is food.

Andrews was fined $25 in police court for selling a half pound of candy without issuing a sales tax receipt. Under Ohio law, food is exempted from the sales tax but candy is not classified as food.

Mayor J. W. Haines did not pass on the constitutionality of the legislative act in fining Andrews. The affidavit against Andrews was signed by Myron E. Chapman, sales tax investigator.

Andrews said he represented a group of candy retailers who believed the tax unconstitutional.

REJECT PETITION

Richland and Knox Commissioners Dismiss Ditch Project.

Acting jointly on protests registered at a hearing in Mansfield Wednesday, Richland and Knox county commissioners today had dismissed a petition for construction or a drainage ditch three miles long in southern Richland and northern Knox counties.

The project had called for the expenditure of $2,200, with the cost to be apportioned to persons holding property in the area drained by the ditch.

About 30 property owners attended the hearing in the county commissioners office, the majority of them protesting against the proposed improvement.

DROP IN ORANGE PRICES TOPS WEEK-END FOOD MARKET NEWS

One of the more interesting phases of the fruit market to Mansfield housewives is the fact that oranges have taken a substantial drop in price in the last 10 days. The largest size of the California navels is selling now for the same price of the medium size several weeks ago.

Temple oranges, the largest of the Florida crop, are still the favorite for juice. Tangerines in all sizes are considerably lower in price than oranges.

Although the fruit market is in its mid-winter slump, there are many varieties to be found here; among the more luxurious being fresh Florida strawberries. Then there are large California pears; three color of California grapes, red bananas, limes, fresh rhubarb, avacados, grapefruit and all kinds of apples.

Hothouse mushrooms may be purchased in bulk and for as low as 25 cents a pound. Another item that is being sold in bulk this week at several places is Brussel sprouts.

Florida produce growers are sending the bulk of vegetables to the local market, and because of this Mansfielders may now buy sun-ripened tomatoes as well as the hothouse variety, cultivated dandelions, young turnips with the tops; new green cabbage and new potatoes.

Savoy cabbage and the red variety may be seen in the markets, along with artichoke, green Limas, egg plant, cauliflower, curley kale and greens for salads, such as endive, water cress, lettuce, cucumbers and green onions.

Broccoli, which has come to be one of the best sellers in green vegetables and squash are plentiful. Among the tasty vegetables for soup are found parsley and celery root. A number of places are selling bundles of the outer celery stalks for soup.

Salsify and parsnips are among the commoner varieties and may be had at most of the markets.

PUEBLO, Colo.— (U.P.) — John Moore, a newspaper stereotyper, had unusual excitement on a recent hunting expedition. He encountered a rattlesnake and made it so angry by teasing it with the point of his gun that it shook off all its rattlers. That's Moore's story.

Ontario Girl to Represent County In Speech Contest

When the district Prince of Peace contest is held at Wooster Sunday, Richland county will be represented by Miss Helen Friday, daughter of former county commissioner, John C. Friday, of Ontario.

Miss Friday, who is a senior at Springfiel d township high school, won the first preliminary contest at her home church, the Ontario Community church, and on Dec. 12 won the county contest which was staged at Shelby.

Participating in the district contest Sunday at Wooster will be representatives from Stark, Holmes, Medina, Harrison, Knox and Richland counties.

Miss Friday's subject will be the same she has used throughout the series, "America Seen Through the Eyes of A Stranger." This is her second try in the Prince of Peace contests. In 1936 she won at the Ontario church, but lost out in the county contest.

The Prince of Peace declamation contests are sponsored by the Ohio Council of Churches. Eighteen district contests will be held Sunday.

Spry The new, purer ALL-vegetable shortening TRIPLE-CREAMED!

TRY AUNT JENNY'S SPICE LAYER CAKE

½ cup Spry
⅔ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup brown sugar firmly packed
2 eggs, unbeaten
2½ cups sifted flour (cake flour preferred)
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
1 cup sour milk

Combine Spry salt and spices. Add brown sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. (Cake-mixing goes twice as fast with triple-creamed Spry women say.) Add eggs, one at a time beating thoroughly after each addition. Sift flour baking powder and soda together 3 times. Add small amounts of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth.

Pour batter into two 9-inch layer pans greased with Spry. Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Spread Coffee Raisin Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. The rich, fruity flavor of this frosting blends marvelously with the fragrant spicy layers. Notice the fine grain this Spry cake has—how long it stays fresh! But only Spry can give perfect results in this recipe!

COFFEE RAISIN FROSTING

2 tablespoons Spry
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar

2 tablespoons cream scalded
½ cup ground seeded raisins

Combine Spry, butter and salt and blend. Beat in ½ cup sugar. Add coffee, alternately with remaining sugar, beating well after each addition. Add hot cream and beat well. Add raisins and mix well. Makes enough to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.
